analyzing literary texts plays films and photographs within a transatlantic framework this volume explores the inseparable and mutually influential relationship between different forms of national identity in great britain and the united states and the construction of masculinity in each country the contributors take up issues related to how certain kinds of nationally specific masculine identifications are produced how these change over time and how literature and other forms of cultural representation eventually question and deconstruct their own myths of masculinity focusing on the period from the end of world war ii to the 1980s the essays each take up a topic with particular cultural and historical resonance whether it is hypermasculinity in early cold war films the articulation of male anxieties in plays by arthur miller david mamet and sam shepard the evolution of photographic depictions of masculinity from the 1960s to the 1980s or the representations of masculinity in the fiction of american and british writers such as patricia highsmith richard yates john braine martin amis evan s connell james dickey john berger philip roth frank chin and maxine hong kingston the editors and contributors make a case for the importance of understanding the larger context for the emergence of more pluralistic culturally differentiated and ultimately transnational masculinities arguing that it is possible to conceptualize and emphasize difference and commonality simultaneously reading contemporary african american literature focuses on the subject of contemporary african american popular fiction by women bragg s study addresses why such work should be the subject of scholarly examination describes the events and attitudes which account for the critical neglect of this body of work and models a critical approach to such narratives that demonstrates the distinctive ways in which this literature captures the complexities of post civil rights era black experiences in making her arguments regarding the value of popular writing bragg argues that black women s popular fiction foregrounds gender in ways that are frequently missing from other modes of narrative production they exhibit a responsiveness and timeliness to the shifting social terrain which is reflected in the rapidly shifting styles and themes which characterize popular fiction in doing so they extend the historical function of african american literature by continuing to engage the black body as a symbol of political meaning in the social context of the united states in popular literature beauty bragg locates a space from which black women engage a variety of public discourses caribbean women have long utilized the medium of fiction to break the pervasive silence surrounding abuse and exploitation contemporary works by such authors as tiphonie yanique and nicole dennis benn illustrate the deep rooted consequences of trauma based on gender sexuality and race and trace the steps that women take to find safer ground from oppression taking flight examines the immigrant experience in contemporary caribbean women s writing and considers the effects of restrictive social mores in the texts examined in taking flight culturally sanctioned violence impacts the ability of female characters to be at home in their bodies or in the spaces they inhabit the works draw attention to the historic racialization and sexualization of black women s bodies and continue the legacy of narrating black women s long standing contestation of systems of oppression arguing that there is a clear link between trauma shame and migration with trauma serving as a precursor to the protagonists emigration jennifer donahue focuses on how female bodies are policed how moral racial and sexual codes are linked and how the enforcement of social norms can function as a form of trauma donahue considers the relationship between trauma shame and sexual politics and investigates how shame works as a social regulator that frequently leads to withdrawal or avoidant behaviors in those who violate socially sanctioned mores most importantly taking flight positions flight as a powerful counter to disempowerment and considers how flight whether through dissociation or migration functions as a form of resistance
