this book is an edited collection introducing the education policy and social inequality series and presents chapters from authors on the editorial board it investigates relations between educational policy and social inequality not simply in terms of policy solutions for inequalities but also how education policy frames creates and at times exacerbates social inequalities it adopts a critical stance encompassing innovative and interdisciplinary theoretical and conceptual studies

drawing on e.g. sociology, cultural studies, social and cultural geography and history as well as original empirical work that examines a range of educational contexts including early years education, vocational and further education, informal education, k-12 schooling and higher education, the book argues that critique and policy studies can have a transformative function, positing new dimensions for understanding the role of education policy in connection with recurrent social problems and seeking the amelioration of social inequality in ways that challenge the possibility of equity in the liberal democratic state as well as in other forms of governance and government.

This open access handbook brings together the latest research from a wide range of internationally influential scholars to analyze educational policy research from international, historical and interdisciplinary perspectives by effectively breaking through the boundaries between countries and disciplines. It presents new theories, techniques and methods for contemporary education policy and illustrates the educational policies and educational reform practices that various countries have introduced to meet the challenges of continuous change. This volume focuses on policies and changes in schools and classrooms; the studies on school changes present the differences in the policies and challenges of k-12 schools and universities in different countries and regions and in connection with the contradictions and conflicts between tradition and modernization as well as the changing roles of various stakeholders, especially that of teachers in terms of curriculum and instruction. Many countries have undertaken experiments and introduced changes based on two major themes: what to teach and how to teach. International education assessments represented by PISA not only promote the improvement and extensive application of educational assessment and testing techniques but have also had far-reaching impacts on education policies and education reforms in many countries, focusing on the changes in educational policies at the micro level. This volume comprehensively reveals the complex interactions between school organizations, teachers, curricula, teaching and learning, evaluation and other elements within the education system as well as the latest related reforms worldwide.

By focusing on the relationships involved in improving education policy, together will change how policy making in education is approached and showcase alternative models that will lead to more sustainable and effective practices. The authors analyse the state of educational policy making in England; they particularly reflect on the relationships of the different people and organisations involved, policy makers such as politicians, civil servants and unions, and explain how these interact with the wider world. Building on the experiences of the authors on different sides of the process, the book explores the reasons why education policies fail the very sector they are intended to serve by considering aspects of policy making in different countries. The authors highlight more effective ways of building relationships between decision makers and those affected by educational policy. This book explores an alternative long-term systems-led and relational policy making and maps out a range of unique models for change of interest to those
