an ideological analysis of breastfeeding in contemporary america disciplining the maternal body analyzes the discourses involved in the pro breastfeeding breast is best paradigm highlighting how such politically charged rhetoric restrains women's ability to make the choices that are best for them and their families loreen olson and jenni m simon combat the idea that is so often espoused by medical professionals researchers and society at large to be a good parent one must provide breast milk to the infant in order for the baby to grow into a healthy productive citizen by exposing the biases present olson and simon advocate for the need to make discursive space for all parents and all feeding choices scholars of communication rhetoric gender and women's studies and feminism will find this book particularly useful fragmentation has become a defining albeit controversial metaphor of international law scholarship in the era of globalisation some scholars see it as a new development others as history repeating itself some approach it as a technical issue and some as the reflection of deeper political struggles but there is near consensus about the fact that the established vision of international law as a unitary whole is under threat at the core of the fragmentation debate lies the concept of unity but this is hardly ever rationalised and is more assumed than explained its meaning remains vague and intuitive the concept of unity in public international law attempts to dispel that vagueness by exploring the various possible meanings of the concept of unity in international law however eschewing one grand theory of unity it identifies and compares five candidates intentionally pluralistic in its outlook the book does not engage in normative arguments about whether international law is or should be unitary but seeks to show instead that the concept of unity is contested and that discourses on fragmentation are necessarily contingent the thesis on which the book is based won the 2009 prize for best doctoral thesis from the association des professeurs de droit du québec over the last 30 years non governmental organizations ngos have become increasingly present in international discourses and active in international decision making among the estimated several million ngos in existence today an increasingly visible number of organizations are defining themselves in religious terms referring to themselves as religious spiritual or faith based ngos this book documents the initial encounters between the particularly international segment of those organizations and the un while at the same time covering the protestant and catholic spectrum that dominated the early years of their activities in the un context this book focuses on the construction of the human rights discourse inside two religiously affiliated organizations the commissions of the churches on international affairs ccia and pax romana imcs icmica these organizations have been formally accredited as ngos by the un label themselves as religious and look back upon a long and intense cooperation with the un lehmann presents material from the archives of those two organizations that has so far rarely been used for academic analysis in doing so as well as documenting the encounters between those organizations and the un and looking at the protestant and catholic spectrum the book provides new insights into the very construction of
