as urban regions face the demand to decrease fossil fuel dependency many cities in the developing world are undertaking initiatives designed to create a greener city by aiming for a more sustainable form of urban development and to do so they need to evaluate existing modes of transportation and patterns of land use focusing on oslo an early leader in urban environmental policy making and a european green city award winner it argues that this evaluation must adopt and integrate two approaches firstly as a process of ecological modernization based on a combination of transit densification and mixed use development and secondly as an opportunity to reconsider the character and substance of the built environment as a reflection of natural values landscapes and natural resources of the wider region environmental debate and concern is widespread in oslo and this is reflected in its earlier planning decisions to leave intact large forest reserves its successful ecological restoration of the oslo fjord the importance of outdoor culture among its residents the relatively progressive political agenda of norway this book provides an opportunity for a critical assessment of the limitations and opportunities inherent in green oslo and suggests the need for much broader integrative approaches it concludes by highlighting lessons which other cities might learn from oslo architecture was fundamental to the realization of welfare state policy in the nordic countries translating democratic ideals into concrete spatial materializations an inclusive notion of welfare for all was embraced by a generation of architects landscape architects and planners who labored to give physical form to ideas of equality collectivity and democracy producing a vast architectural output in scandinavia during the postwar years today however the architectural legacy of this era is contested welfare for all no longer enjoys the social or political consensus it once did this publication critically engages with this contested architectural legacy and provides a nuanced portrait of postwar welfare architecture coming to terms with a contentious past and facing an uncertain future with newly commissioned photographic work by contemporary nordic artists based on an interdisciplinary research project by kth stockholm oslo school of architecture university of copenhagen internationally renown contributors shed light on aspects of the relationship between architecture and welfare
