currents in language learning is a biennial book series published by Wiley and the Language Learning Research Club at the University of Michigan. It provides programmatic state-of-the-art overviews of current issues in the language sciences and their applications in first, second, and bilingual/multilingual language acquisition in naturalistic and tutored contexts. It brings together disciplinary perspectives from linguistics, psychology, education, anthropology, sociology, cognitive science, and neuroscience.

Second Language Educational Experiences for Adult Learners provides an up-to-date review of the theory and practice of adult second language education. The primary objective is to introduce core ideas that should inform the design, development, and delivery of language learning experiences that take the typical forms of materials, courses, teaching, and assessment, divided into three sections. The book first addresses what we know about adult second language acquisition and how individuals may acquire languages differently from each other. In the second section, key educational design elements from pedagogical methods to curriculum to assessment are then introduced from the perspective of research-based understandings about effective practices. Rounding out the volume is an overview of critical issues for language educational innovation, including supporting teachers, localizing materials, and instruction, evaluating and improving education, and working with technology. Each chapter concludes with a set of recommended design principles that should guide readers toward high-quality, valuable, and empirically supported language educational experiences. This volume will be of interest to researchers and students investigating instructed language learning, designers creating useful language learning materials, and language teaching innovators seeking to improve outcomes in diverse instructional settings around the world.

Evidence-Based Second Language Pedagogy is a cutting-edge collection of empirical research conducted by top scholars focusing on instructed second language acquisition (ISLA) and offering a direct contribution to second language pedagogy by closing the gap between research and practice. Building on the conceptual state-of-the-art chapters in the Routledge Handbook of Instructed Second Language Acquisition 2017, studies in this volume are organized according to the key components of ISLA: types of instruction, learning processes, learning outcomes, and learner and teacher psychology. The volume responds to pedagogical needs in different L2 teaching and learning settings by including a variety of theoretical frameworks, sociological, psychological, sociocultural, and cognitive methodologies, qualitative and quantitative target languages (English, Spanish, and Mandarin), modes of instruction (face-to-face and computer-mediated), and targets of instruction speaking writing listening motivation and professional development and instructional settings second language foreign language and heritage language a novel synthesis of research in the rapidly growing field of sla that also covers effective research based teaching strategies evidence based second language pedagogy is the ideal resource for researchers practitioners and graduate students in sla applied linguistics and tesol this edited volume brings together a number of experts who argue in favour of a more central role for replication research in second language acquisition and applied linguistics it provides a theoretical argument as well as practical examples and model replication studies
