this book examines interactions between Britain and India through the analytical framework of the production and circulation of knowledge throughout the long eighteenth century. Disciplined subjects is one of the first works to analyse the imperial school curriculum and the ways in which it shaped and influenced Indian subjectivity. The author focuses on the endeavours of the colonial government, missionaries and native stakeholders in determining the physical material and intellectual content of institutional learning in India. Further, the volume compares the changes in pedagogical practices and textbooks in schools in Britain and colonial Bengal and its subsequent repercussions on the psyche and identity of the learners. Drawing on a host of primary sources in the UK and India, this volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of modern history, education, sociology and South Asian studies.

Intended for Key Stage 3, this support pack provides a range of photocopiable worksheets which have been developed thematically to allow teaching and use alongside the pupils' books. Each topic in the support pack comprises a cross-reference to the relevant pages in the accompanying pupil book, narrative background material to set the topic in context and notes from the author on the features of each copymaster. This pack is one of three separate support packs, one each for the three books in this series.

Aiming to meet the key demands of the SCAA model syllabi and LEA agreed syllabi, this series covers the educational and legal requirements for re-teaching the pupils' books. It contains information, discussion material and activities, and each double-page spread provides two half-hour lessons per week. Suggestions for further work are included in the photocopiable teachers' books of which this is the fourth.

This book focuses on primary education in India and interrogates what schooling means and does to children from weaker sections of Indian society and which values underpin the school system. It examines whether the concept of education for all is just a mechanically conceived policy target to chasing enrolment and attendance or whether it is a larger social goal and a deeper political statement about the need for attacking entrenched social inequalities and, above all, an affirmation of the idea that schooling has a liberating potential. Drawing on original data collected in the two states of andhra pradesh and west bengal the authors first present the multiple ways in which social class impinges on the educational system educational processes and educational outcomes in the second part of the book issues around autonomy and accountability are explored via an analysis of the position of teachers within the educational hierarchy and by looking at the various possibilities of making teachers accountable the last part centres on the learning process with a particular focus on the classroom the conclusion includes recommendations that are related to the necessity for a larger debate and normative framework which includes private schools as possible partners in the pursuing of a public good for which a public entity should take some responsibility and in conjuncture to that the necessity to move from government action and responsibilities to a broader concept of public action provided by publisher
