in the psychoanalytic ear and the sociological eye toward an american independent tradition nancy j chodorow brings together her two professional identities psychoanalyst and sociologist as she also brings together and moves beyond two traditions within american psychoanalysis naming for the first time an american independent tradition the book s chapters move inward toward fine tuned discussions of the theory and epistemology of the american independent tradition which chodorow locates originally in the writings of erik erikson and hans loewald and outward toward what chodorow sees as a missing but necessary connection between psychoanalysis the social sciences and the social world chodorow suggests that hans loewald and erik erikson self defined ego psychologists each brings in the intersubjective attending to the fine tuned interactions of mother and child analyst and patient and individual and social surround she calls them intersubjective ego psychologists for chodorow the basic theory and clinical epistemology of the american independent tradition chodorow describes intrinsic contradictions in psychoanalytic theory and practice that these authors and later american independents address and she points to similarities between the american and british independent traditions the american independent tradition especially through the writings ^{Tymoczko} of erikson points the analyst and the scholar to individuality and society moving back in time chodorow suggests that from his earliest writings to his last works freud was interested in society and culture both as these are lived by individuals and as psychoanalysis can help us to understand the fundamental processes that create them chodorow advocates for a return to these sociocultural interests for psychoanalysts at the same time she rues the lack of attention within the social sciences to the serious study of individuals and individuality and advocates for a field of individuology in the university this book presents a systematic literary comparison of the retranslations by adopting a mixed method and bottom up inductive approach by developing an empirical corpus approach this corpus is specifically tailored to identify and study linguistic and non linguistic modernist features throughout the texts such as stream of consciousness indirect interior monologue and free indirect speech all occurrences are analysed quantitatively in the computations of inferential and comparative statistics such as tests of time trends lexical variety and lexical frequency the target texts are digitised and the resulting text files are then analysed using a bespoke novel computer program capable of the functions not provided by commercially available software such as wordsmith tools and wmatrix this methodology enables in depth explorations of micro and macro textual features and allows a mixed method approach combining close reading qualitative analysis with systematic quantitative comparisons the empirical study of the digital corpus of eleven italian re translations of virginia woolf s to the lighthouse identifies a progressive source text orientation only in a relatively few aspects of a few target texts the translators presence affects all the examined target texts in terms of register and style under the influence of the italian translation norms usually attributed to the
