this volume originally published in 1925 outlines the historical development of the muslim law of inheritance in pre islamic law it discusses the ranking of heirs and guardians reforms introduced by muhammad subsequent development of the law and rise of the orthodox schools

when a person dies his ownership of his property ends and is to be given to his heirs it is allah s ta ala favour upon us that he has not made the disposal of that wealth as charity necessary but rather he in his wisdom knows that the death of any person is a great loss to their relatives and an even greater loss to their dependents who relied upon them for provision that said allah ta ala also knew that man has greed and it is this greed that causes brother to hate brother and sister and to usurp the rights of the less persuasive for this reason allah has fixed very clearly in the qur an the allotted shares of the relatives of the deceased this has been further mapped out in the ahadith by the prophet of allah ta ala so as to leave no scope of doubt or leeway for argument in who gets what everyone will get their share no more no less this prevents the greedy from getting more than their share and it stops the undefended from receiving less than their allotment in islam the concept of the wealth only going to the first born son is seen as oppressive islam has also distinguished the different levels of dependency of the closer relatives and has stipulated amounts varying in quantity in different circumstances the factors that lessen one relative s share is the presence of another relative who also has a considerable relationship with the deceased there are times when an allotment may seem unfair these will also be explained for example of two inheriting brothers one may be financially well off whereas the other is poor this will not mean that the poorer brother will get everything or more than the richer brother this is because inheritance is not charity and is given on account of the strength of the relationship not on account of who is more needy both brothers in this aspect are equal and will thus receive an equal share this book only deals with the financial side of the events around death for an in depth look at the rites of passage of the burial please refer to our publication what to do when a muslim dies this is an open access book wael b hallaq a renowned sharia scholar has called sharia an episteme that suffered a structural death following the dawn of modernity in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries hallaq 2009 15 16 yet its resurgent is remarkable across a number of jurisdictional fault lines from muslim majority nations in middle east and southeast asia to muslim minority societies in western europe and north america across these jurisdictions the relationship between sharia and state law is central it includes sharia state encounters notably in the form of state islamic law in the field of family law which is often asserted as the core or last stronghold of sharia moors 2003 2 coulson 1969 115 6 and other substantive areas of law such as islamic economics and islamic philanthropy and also jinayah islamic penal law regardless of their differences in their own specific context these areas somehow manage to secure an importance place in the modern days it involves different loci of authority to interpret legislate and enforce sharia or parts of it that not only flourish but also being challenged around the muslim world equally important are implications of the increasingly unsettled authority of apparently agreed upon substance of sharia to contribute on these issues we would like to invite scholars from diverse discipline including law anthropology and islamic studies working in both muslim majority and muslim minority contexts to present their works in our international seminar on sharia law and muslim society isslams this paper examines whether the son preference and fertility behavior of muslim couples respond to the risk of inheritance expropriation by their extended family according to traditional islamic inheritance principles only the son of a deceased man can exclude his male agnates from inheritance and preserve his estate within the nuclear household the paper exploits cross sectional and time variation in the application of the islamic inheritance exclusion rule in indonesia between muslim and non muslim populations affected by different legal systems across men with different sibling sex composition and before and after a change in islamic law that allowed female children to exclude male relatives the analysis finds that muslim couples more affected by the exclusion rule exhibit stronger son preference practice sex differential fertility stopping attain a higher proportion of sons and have larger families than non muslims or muslims for whom the exclusion rule is less binding islamic substantive law otherwise called branches of the law furu al fiqh covers the textual provisions and jurisprudential rulings relating to specific transactions under islamic law it is to islamic substantive law that the rules of islamic legal theory are applied the relationship between islamic legal theory and islamic substantive law is metaphorically described by islamic jurists as a process of cultivation istithmar whereby the qualified jurist mujtahid as the cultivator uses relevant rules of legal theory to harvest the substantive law on specific issues in form of fruits thamarat from the sources the articles in this volume engage critically with selected substantive issues in islamic law including family law law of inheritance law of financial transactions criminal law judicial procedure and international law al siyar these areas of substantive law have been selected due to their contemporary relevance and application in different parts of the muslim world today the volume features an introductory overview of the subject as well as a comprehensive bibliography to aid further research
