volunteers are central to providing opportunities to play sport whether helping to run sports clubs helping in school sport or at sports events this volume focuses on the volunteers who support clubs approximately 150 000 sports clubs in the uk are supported by volunteers in roles such as coaches treasurers membership secretaries and other formal roles as well as a myriad of other volunteers who help on a more informal basis this structure of clubs run by volunteers is common to other countries such as germany canada finland and australia it is a valuable community resource not only for the opportunities it provides for sports participation but also the more general contribution to the quality of communities this club structure has been central to government policy to increase sports participation and has developed from the second half of the 19th century yet its maintenance relies on a nucleus of core volunteers in each club who take the major roles recruiting new volunteers especially for these core roles is always difficult despite central government in the uk having a commitment to developing volunteering clubs are having to adjust to new relationships with local government as funding and subsidy of facility use is reduced trends in sports participation are away from the traditional team sports and towards more individual participation club members may demand an experience benchmarked against private or local government providers regarding the club as providing a service as much as an organisation they contribute to the chapters in this book contribute an international perspective to understanding these issues it will be of great value to community sport leaders and scholars of sport sociology and leisure studies this book was published as a special issue of the international journal of sport policy and politics

a new history of rotary international shows how the organization reinforced capitalist values and cultural practices at home and tried to remake the world in the idealized image of main street america rotary international was born in chicago in 1905 by the time world war ii was over the organization had made good on its promise to "girdle the globe" rotary international and the selling of american capitalism explores the meteoric rise of a local service club that brought missionary zeal to the spread of american style economics and civic ideals brendan goff traces rotary's ideological roots to the business progressivism and cultural internationalism of the united states in the early twentieth century the key idea was that community service was intrinsic to a capitalist way of life the tone of "service above self" was often religious but as rotary looked abroad it embraced woodrow wilson's secular message of collective security and international cooperation civic internationalism was the businessman's version of the christian imperial civilizing mission performed outside the state apparatus the target of this mission was both domestic and global the rotarian the organization's publication encouraged americans to see the world as friendly to main street values and rotary worked with us corporations to export those values case studies of rotary activities in tokyo and havana show the group paving the way for encroachments of us power—economic political and cultural—during the interwar years rotary's evangelism on behalf of market friendly philanthropy and volunteerism reflected a genuine belief in peacemaking through the world's "parliament of businessmen" but as goff makes clear rotary also reinforced american power and interests demonstrating the tension at the core of us led internationalism
