historically the focus on inpatient units has not been the prevention or management of violence risk but reacting to the violence after an incident violence on these units leads to physical emotional and economic consequences for perpetrators victims and the mental health system although short term risk assessments have been developed to specifically address the risk for inpatient violence these measures have only been implemented on the inpatient units and not in the emergency department ed which is often the first point of contact for the mentally ill the purpose of the present study was to determine if a framework that uses structured professional judgment spj principles in the emergency department ed could predict violence within an inpatient unit the inpatient violence screening tool ipvst spj framework was comprised of several pre existing measures and four additional items culled from a literature review these measures include the brøset violence checklist bvc almvik woods 1998 and the dynamic appraisal of situational aggression dasa iv ogloff daffern 2006a a third short term risk assessment the mcniel violence checklist revised vsc and vsc r mcniel binder 1994 was coded based on files participants were 697 individuals who presented to the psychiatric ed at a general hospital and were interviewed by the psychiatric triage nurses ptns the follow up sample was 207 patients who were subsequently admitted to an inpatient unit the ipvst was completed by the ptns after their interview the vsc vsc r and outcome data were collected from files of the follow up sample the results of this study partially supported the use of the ipvst as a risk assessment framework in the ed to prevent inpatient violence there was consistency in spj ratings amongst the majority of the ptns the ipvst total score and spj rating were significantly related to management strategies as well as significantly related to inpatient violence the aucs of the total scores of the ipvst and the individual measures were between 62 65 except for the bvc which was not a significant predictor of inpatient violence the aucs for the categorical risk rating of the bvc dasa vsc and vsc r were between 54 64 implications for risk assessment and management are discussed violence towards healthcare workers in acute care settings particularly mental health units is increasing nationwide causing safety and financial concerns for health care organizations efforts were made to decrease assaults directed towards healthcare staff on a twenty five bed adult mental health unit in a large academic university hospital the aim of the project was to decrease assaults by twenty five percent in six months after implementation of a violence risk assessment vra tool the ultimate goal was to maintain assault rates below ndnqi assaults on the unit for the fourth quarter of 2015 were 2 92 ndnqi 2 05 assaults with injury were 2 43 ndnqi 0 75 a literature review was performed to ascertain valid and reliable tools in predicting assaultive behavior which resulted in three vra tools with high predictive value the broset violence checklist bvc dynamic appraisal of situational aggression dasa and modified overt aggression scale moas each tool was piloted on the unit for two weeks followed by a survey to staff regarding their choice of tool based on risk assessment ease of use and acceptability appendix a the dasa appendix b was chosen by the staff and approved by the nursing steering committee next steps include implementing the dasa tool in the electronic health record with follow up metrics to determine its effectiveness in identifying and decreasing assault potential recommendations include implementing ebp interventions to prevent violence for patients identified as assault risk introduction workplace violence wpv is a problem in healthcare globally nationally and locally many national and credentialing organizations have recognized wpv as a problem and have suggested many interventions to help mitigate wpv the three most common interventions are zero tolerance de escalation techniques and tools to report and predict violence the tools to report and predict violence lead to interventions to prevent workplace violence the most evidence based tool for reporting and predicting workplace violence is the broset violence checklist bvc intermountain healthcare has utilized a reporting tool called the disruptive behavior report dbr in this project the choice to use the dbr was based on its ease of use and the ability to track its usage methods the objectives of the project are to educate staff on wpv how to use the dbr to recognize behaviors leading to violence and to create a safe work environment the emergency staff at intermountain dixie regional medical center were taught about workplace violence and the use of dbr using a powerpoint presentation during a mandatory department meeting in march 2019 results discern analytics 2 0 was used to see how many times the dbr was used the year before the intervention the dbr was used only twice between 3 1 2018 and 3 1 2019 following the intervention the dbr was used eight times between 3 1 2019 and 6 16 2019 a four fold increase in three and half months conclusion educating staff on the use of the dbr increased in its use and therefore made staff more aware of workplace violence
