in a context of growing social and environmental concerns the role of large enterprises and corporations in encouraging sustainability has drawn increasing attention in recent years both academic debates and public opinion research have called into question the extended responsibilities of firms in our increasingly inter connected world by studying issues associated with the greatest challenges mankind is currently facing from climate change to social exclusion the scientific community is aware of the need to account for the actions and agendas of companies especially large ones they are becoming important global political actors with great power but also unprecedented responsibilities with this in mind the authors believe that it is more important than ever that large enterprises on the one hand take into account the opinion of their stakeholder while defining their strategies and on the other hand disclose material and relevant information on their ability to contribute to sustainability while delivering value for all of their stakeholders a consensus is being reached on the responsibility of large enterprises to report in a triple bottom perspective not only on their financial performances but also on their social and environmental outcomes consequently it is important to understand what elements organizations need to report on in order to provide stakeholders with relevant and comprehensive sustainability reports against this background this book presents a significant and original contribution both empirically and theoretically to the social and environmental accounting literature by studying the various features of stakeholder engagement in sustainability reporting this cross disciplinary business book develops insight into the management of businesses operating in various economic sectors that take a proactive approach to the triple dimension of sustainability economic social and environmental positioning itself as a key reference for both academics and practitioners in the wide area of business management the concept of sustainability is today at the heart of international policies and debate and plays a key role in deep changes to the organizational models of companies operating in a wide range of sectors of economic activity in particular this book aims to gain a deeper understanding of how stakeholder engagement can contribute to value co creation both in the company and along the supply chain and what distinguishes the differing involvement of stakeholders in particular between public involvement and stakeholder participation each chapter of this book presents different modalities of stakeholder involvement and develops the concept of value co creation from organizational and marketing perspectives this book is recommended reading for those interested in the fields of stakeholder engagement and theory sustainability business studies and sustainable development the main objective of this book is to provide an innovative set of concepts and tools regarding company management internal and external stakeholders and social responsibilities reflecting the necessities and opportunities generated by the digital transformation the transition to a knowledge based economy and the covid 19 crisis the book based on a holistic vision and contextual approach of business contributes to the development of company management and stakeholder and social responsibility theories and practices being structured in 12 chapters the original company management vision approaches and tools are based on three pillars a new manager relevant stakeholder rather than manager subordinate managerial paradigm a new type of company social responsibility rather than corporate social responsibility and a new concept of company relevant stakeholder rather than that of salient stakeholders the book contains two innovative managerial mechanisms the managerial synapse and company relevant stakeholders based management system able to help companies and stakeholders face successfully the challenges of digital transformation and the covid 19 crisis and to generate greater organization functionality and performance the book will be of interest to company managers and management specialists management academics consultants and researchers and mba students interested in a style of management with social responsibility at the forefront the role of stakeholders is integral to corporate sustainability as society increasingly demands that corporations play a role in achieving environmental objectives in addition to building shareholder wealth in the first book to gather cutting edge research on the interactions between stakeholders and organizations within the context of corporate sustainability the contributors to this volume provide a diversity of perspectives from north america europe and oceania the authors examine the role stakeholders play in influencing regulations on global issues such as climate change and national and regional problems stakeholder selection of companies and the sustainability issues they choose to target are explored as are the ways in which organizations motivate them to participate in the evolution of holistic sustainable solutions the interactions between stakeholder pressures organizational characteristics and corporate sustainability practices are also covered finally the volume provides an examination of the dynamic structure of organizational fields in the european automobile industry in order to analyze the factors that foster or hinder ecological modernization academics environmental consultants sustainability managers ngos and international development institutions will find this timely volume of great value considers not only the environmental outcomes of an individual business but also its contribution to its business sector and the natural environment author from macquarie university australia this book shows managers how they can identify their stakeholders and cooperate with them in a mutually successful and satisfying way it includes numerous examples from case studies and international firms illustrating the stepping stones to a comprehensive stakeholder management now in its second edition rogene buchholz s text offers a managerial perspective of the principles of environmental management rather than focusing on ecological aspects in this paper we explain why firms selectively responding to the most powerful legitimate and urgent demands of their stakeholders will not bring about sustainability and offer suggestions on what we should do in light of this shortcoming sustainability issues tend to be wicked problems that require cooperation across parties and over time to define and resolve stakeholder pressures can bring sustainability to the fore but government intervention is necessary to drive meaningful action to resolve such issues without government intervention self interested stakeholders can pressure firms to move away from the complex long term challenges of wicked problems yet stakeholder pressure is also necessary as without it industries may self regulate in self serving ways our analysis thus suggests that collaboration between business government and stakeholders is necessary to resolve the wicked problems of sustainability we therefore urge the stakeholder literature to move beyond its libertarian underpinnings by re incorporating government into models of effective corporate governance environmental sustainability practice and research have advanced over the past decade from novelty to near mainstream status today during this environmentally critical time period sustainability practitioner techniques such as environmental energy and social auditing other sustainability information and related systems and a wide variety of environmental sustainability approaches have been developed improved and institutionalised advancing both the practice and research of environmental sustainability management and policy however academics and practitioners in the sustainability field still have widely differing perspectives on what a sustainable organisation is or might be but seldom take the opportunity to share these respective sustainability visions let alone the multiple ways to achieve them new horizons in research on sustainable organisations is intended to bridge this gap between academics and practitioners with cutting edge research from both groups on progress towards sustainability after working on sustainability related projects involving other academics both research and practitioner oriented graduate students consultants managers and activists the lead co editors of this volume saw the need to encourage information exchanges among differing networks of sustainability stakeholders to create a pathway for researchers and practitioners in the general area of organisations and the natural environment to address issues of common interest there are many networks in the general subject area but the cross pollination of ideas between academics and practitioners remains sketchy new horizons in research on sustainable organisations is intended to present and encourage such cross pollination the chapters in this volume are presented in three subsets generally proceeding from the most macro to the most micro in terms of perspective and applicability however this arbitrary division belies the integration from macro through meso or mid range to micro levels that is apparent in these studies macro approaches typically include wider geographic scopes greater numbers of stakeholders and more complex explanatory factors than micro approaches each chapter adopts one or more particular sustainability world view and then grounds these and the other chapter elements within actual organisations therefore the reader is advised to envision not a one dimensional continuum but rather a circle in which the macro view both feeds back and feeds forward to the micro view this volume addresses a number of intriguing and important sustainable organisation phenomena such as multiple sustainable development perspectives changing environmental politics environmental management systems variations voluntary environmental programme performance complex adaptive systems and environmental technology development additionally several models are suggested such as cultivation capabilities and business ecology frameworks
