on the tip of the dark isle lies the tranquil fishing village of cromness where the normal round of dominoes matches meetings of the ladies guild and twice daily netting of salmon continues as it has always done but all is not well down on the beach an old man rakes the sand looking for clues to the future the patterns show him the harmony of the universe but they also show him that there is something wrong in cromness strange things are beginning to happen because this is no ordinary island centuries ago so it is said the celtic gods and goddesses took refuge here now behind the walls of the world there are restless stirring sounds mist descends strange animals move through the fog turnip fields disappear and the fishing fleet begin to blockade the island as the islanders prepare to celebrate the famed dark isle show the moment of truth approaches soon everyone is drawn into the struggle against the shadows that threaten the dark isle but is anyone truly aware of the scale of events and who will prevail

although the work of many contemporary irish writers for children is often complex and sophisticated there is currently very little critical analysis to do it justice the aim of this book is to redress that situation and to prove that the best writing for children is no less complex and well written than the best adult fiction and offers valuable material for theoreticians with a detailed examination of selected texts by six irish writers for children the book explores the reciprocal relationship between the different time and place of the child reader and the complexity and multiplicity of the world of the adult writer it suggests that putting the different forms of experience in dialogue with each other promotes a new understanding because it allows for other points of view and other ways of seeing this book also suggests that the way in which these writers implement the potential of the child reader s different perspective refutes the idea of the impossible relation between adult and child the opening chapter explores the attempt to re create childhood and adolescence in a range of irish memoir and fiction
