general hasting ismay invariably referred to as pug was one of the most intriguing yet less well known leading military characters of his era this overdue biography describes how an officer who fought tribesmen in india and dervishes in north east africa thereby playing no significant role in the great war found himself as winston churchill s chief of staff throughout the second world war in this hugely influential position he eased the often fraught relationship between a determined and obstinate prime minister and his top military advisors his tact and diplomacy were tested to their limits oiling the wheels with our american allies both political and military even those with anglophobic tendencies based in 10 downing street pug accompanied churchill on his overseas visits and to the major conferences post war ismay assisted mountbatten in the partitioning of the indian sub continent before becoming the first nato secretary general a measure of the high regard the united states and other nations held him in despite the influence he wielded during and after the second world war ismay remains a mysterious figure who somehow managed to maintain the trust of those with whom he worked and dealt with under the most testing and stressful conditions this insightful biography is a most welcome and valuable addition to the history of the period written by a former harvard professor of decision science and game theory this book presents original insights on the strategies and tactics undertaken in four major battles of the second world war that the fighting at gazala in libya in the late spring of 1942 constituted what has been called probably the most spectacular series of victories ever gained over a british army was in part due to its having violated the game theoretic zero sum maxim of napoleon do not do what your enemy wishes you to the sensational british reversal of that disaster later that year at el alamein in egypt derived largely from heeding the millennia old military priority of command unity which has been analyzed and re endorsed by modern decision science this discipline has also judged the somewhat disappointing victory of the allies at falaise in france in august of 1944 to have resulted from excessive risk aversion possibly induced by three different types of fatigue one month later the allied setback at arnhem in the netherlands called into question from the perspective of game theory the value of battlefield surprise these decisions approached from an expert perspective on game theory and presented with high quality maps are presented in this pioneering application of decision science to the battles of world war ii
