military industry and regional defense policy re examines military industrialization in the developing world focusing on policy making in producer states and the impact of security perceptions on such policy making Timothy D Hoyt reassesses the role of regional state sub systems in international relations and recent historical studies of international technology and arms transfers looking at israel iraq and india the three most powerful regional powers in the cold war era he presents an expert analysis of the three sided phenomena of the regional hegemony the regional competitor and the small over achiever this new book breaks away from existing literature on military industries in the developing world which has focused on their economic and development costs and benefits these past studies have used primitive methodologies that focus on the production of complete weapons systems a misleading gauge in a world of growing international defense cooperation they have also ignored empirical evidence of the impact of local military industrial production on cold war regional conflict and of the defence planning and concerns that drove development of indigenous military industries in key regional powers this new text delivers an incisive new perspective the eloquence of effort echoes the merits of conscientious toil it provides an insightful look into the benefits of sustained socio economic effort to convincingly argue that dreams are only achievable through mind numbing toil the writer draws heavily from biographical philosophical economic religious historical and scientific data work is the mission the multiple rewards are the byproducts he argues moreover the pleasure resides in the effort not the results against the dark backdrop of malignancies inflicted on society by unrepentant leeches the benefit of conscientious work is sharply focused the reader is imperceptibly nudged into a higher plane of reality namely purposeful effort regardless of its nature is supremely rewarding the writer forces the realization that regardless of the outcome effort is never wasted conversely indolence is the bane of progress and the root cause of economic crimes indeed corruption in all its diabolical forms is nothing but laziness masquerading as diligence and embraced by vacuous minds craving the most for the least analysis of biographical data sustains the thesis that industry prolongs life inaction truncates it a finding supported by the second law of thermodynamics the persuasiveness of the arguments is supported by a wealth of references together they form the final authority they have given resonance to the arguments contained herein
