this volume examines the impact of concepts from evolutionary biology on the philosophy of mind this book is unique in presenting a hermeneutical approach to understanding mental illness one that places an emphasis on analysing and interpreting the language used in a patient's account of their condition and the therapeutic interaction whilst also considering the context in which it is expressed the central question of naturalism the relation of philosophy to science was one of the defining strands of twentieth century thought and remains a major source of debate and controversy today many argue that philosophy should fold itself into the sciences especially the natural sciences liberal naturalists argue that such scientific naturalism demands reductive and procrustean conceptions of knowledge and reality moreover many philosophical problems are beyond the scope of the sciences such as the nature of persons the normativity of the space of reasons and how best to understand the peculiar mix of objectivity and subjectivity of ethics and art the routledge handbook of liberal naturalism is the first collection to present a comprehensive overview of liberal naturalism a philosophical outlook that lies between scientific naturalism and supernaturalism comprising 37 chapters by an international team of contributors it examines important cutting edge topics including what is liberal naturalism is metaphysics a viable project naturalism in the history of philosophy including hume dewey and quine contemporary liberal naturalists such as p f strawson john mcdowell hilary putnam and john rawls related kinds of naturalism including subject naturalism common sense naturalism and biological naturalism the bearing of liberal naturalism on contemporary debates in epistemology philosophy of mind ethics and aesthetics essential reading for students and researchers in all areas of philosophy this volume will be of particular interest for those studying philosophical naturalism philosophy of science metaphysics epistemology philosophy of mind ethics and aesthetics one of the most pervasive and persistent questions in philosophy is the relationship between the natural sciences and traditional philosophical categories such as metaphysics epistemology and the mind contemporary philosophical naturalism and its implications is a unique and valuable contribution to the literature on this issue it brings together a remarkable collection of highly regarded experts in the field along with some young theorists providing a fresh perspective this book is noteworthy for bringing together committed philosophical naturalists with one notable and provocative exception thus diverging from the growing trend towards anti naturalism the book consists of four sections the first deals with the metaphysical implications of naturalism in which two contributors present radically different perspectives the second attempts to reconcile reasons and forward looking goals with blind darwinian natural selection the third tackles various problems in epistemology ranging from meaning to natural kinds to concept learning the final section includes three papers each addressing a specific feature of the human mind its uniqueness its representational capacity and its morality in this way the book explores the important implications of the post darwinian scientific world view the whole person explores the realms of theory and philosophy concerning minds and persons this book presents models of the emergent realization of multiple mental processes and of the constitution of social realities and social persons each chapter explores prevalent theoretical and philosophical assumptions that obstruct the acceptance of models depicting emergent realization offering analyses of these barriers and demonstrating ways to overcome them rooted in the framework of process metaphysics this book models metaphysically genuine emergence paving the way for a comprehensive model of multifarious normative emergences these normative emergences include phenomena such as function dysfunction representational truth and falsity rational irrational ethical unethical and others that shape our mental and social landscapes the discussion extends to the macro evolutionary culmination of mental processes in a model of reflective consciousness the book then extends its exploration to the foundational role of mental processes in the emergence of social realities and persons with language acting as a core element in these emergences addressing evolutionary aspects brain processes developmental processes moral normativities and self consistency considerations the whole person presents a holistic integration of decades of constructive work endorsements this ambitious yet unpretentious carefully constructed and argued book is a must read for anyone with serious interest in the nature of persons and the psychology of personhood mark bickhard s the whole person is a sustained and convincing narrative about our individual and collective evolution and emergence as the unique beings that we are of particular interest is his account of the emergence of persons as homo socius here professor bickhard captures key but often overlooked historical sociocultural and socio developmental dynamics and processes that make us who we are a species constantly interacting with each other and the world in a never ending process of mutual co constitution by theorizing a process metaphysics replete with emergent normativity that does not clash with a naturalistic ontological psychology bickhard takes a giant step toward seeing ourselves as we are and as we might become jack martin professor emeritus simon fraser university a typical psychological theory offers narrow generalizations about data sets obtained by semi proprietary empirical methods the basic empirical research on which such theories have depended is in crisis tremendous effort has gone into ill motivated studies applying statistics inappropriately to inadequate samples too often generating irreproducible results the kind of theory that psychology needs is broad and deep pays no respect to boundaries between specialties makes falsifiable predictions and answers to arguments in principle the whole person presents just such a theory psychologists whether their aim is to extend it and support it or to challenge it and refute it will benefit from studying it closely robert l campbell professor emeritus psychology clemson university this volume is a serious attempt to open up the subject of european philosophy of science to real thought and provide the structural basis for the interdisciplinary development of its specialist fields but also to provoke reflection on the idea of european philosophy of science this efforts should foster a contemporaneous reflection on what might be meant by philosophy of science in europe and european philosophy of science and how in fact awareness of it could assist philosophers interpret and motivate their research through a stronger collective identity the overarching aim is to set the background for a collaborative project organising systematising and ultimately forging an identity for european philosophy of science by creating research structures and developing research networks across europe to promote its development a collection of essays concerning the mind that explores the prospects for and limits of appealing to facts about evolutionary history and current environment organism interaction in explaining the nature and workings of the mental includes papers in ethology psychology neuroscience each paper contributes to the discussion of what discoveries in this field can tell us about particular issues in the philosophy of mind some of the papers in this issue have had a high profile mel goodale was recently on the cbc talking about how each of us has two types of vision it was a fascinating piece that is not actually written by a philosopher nielsen philosophy u of calgary presents a defense of naturalism as the most reasonable way to view humans place in the world his naturalism is an atheistic and humanistic philosophy but it is not a scientific or value free one he articulates a naturalistic explanation of the functions of religion and argues that truly understanding religion necessitates disbelief he argues that a consistent atheism does not rob life of its significance or make social and political commitment arbitrary after explaining the theory he explains arguments for and against the theory as propounded by various other philosophers most notably the work of wittgenstein which he believes to be the most serious philosophical challenge to secular naturalism c book news inc aquinas needs no introduction as one of the greatest minds of the middle ages highly influential on the development of christian doctrine his ideas are still of fundamental philosophical importance this new critique of his natural law theory discusses the theory s background in aristotle and advances new interpretations of contemporary legal issues which hark back to aquinas
