in early christian apologetics d h williams offers a comprehensive presentation of christian apologetic literature from the second to the fifth century considering each writer within the intellectual context of the day williams argues that most apologies were not directed at a pagan readership in most cases he says ancient apologetics had a double object to instruct the christian and to persuade weak christians or non christians who were sympathetic to christian claims traditionally scholars of apologetics have focused on the context of persecution in the pre constantinian period by following the links in the intellectual trajectory up through the early fifth century williams prompts deeper reflection on the process of christian self definition in late antiquity taken cumulatively he finds apologetic literature was in fact integral to the formation of the christian identity in the roman world why do you believe in god why do you believe in the bible why do you believe in miracles these are questions that christians are often asked by sceptics the field of apologetics attempts to provide rational answers to these and other questions unfortunately apologetical answers to these questions are often abstract and philosophical however the christian apologist evangelist has a much more powerful argument in their arsenal the argument from miracles miracles are the original christian apologetic it was through the witnessing of miracles that christianity was originally spread by applying modern tools of philosophical inquiry and scientific methodology wilson is able to establish a core set of miracles which defy naturalistic explanations and strongly point toward occurrences of special divine action sda however once these occurrences are proven to be genuine miracles several questions remain why does god sometimes perform miracles why does he often answer no how do these random acts fit into his overall plans of redemption by answering these and other questions wilson develops a comprehensive apologetic for both christianity in general and the renewal movement in particular international apologist equips readers to engage challenges to their faith by offering an apologetic method that can be customized to individual needs and situations christianity today 2014 book award winner 2013 word guild award apologetics evangelism the modern apologetic enterprise according to myron penner is no longer valid it tends toward an unbiblical and unchristian form of christian witness and does not have the ability to attest truthfully to christ in our postmodern context in fact christians need an entirely new way of conceiving the apologetic task this provocative text critiques modern apologetic efforts and offers a concept of faithful christian witness that is characterized by love and grounded in god s revelation penner seeks to reorient the discussion of christian belief change a well entrenched vocabulary that no longer works and contextualize the enterprise of apologetics for a postmodern generation in an analysis that will help give direction to future studies of apologetics mayers presents a framework that does justice to both the a priori person of god and the a posteriori work of god in creation and revelation he shows the interdependence of both evidentialism and presuppositionalism without compromising the essentials of either back cover is it still possible in an age of religious and cultural pluralism to engage in christian apologetics how can one urge one s faith on others when such a gesture is typically regarded with suspicion if not outright resentment in humble apologetics john g stackhouse brings his wide experience as a historian philosopher journalist and theologian to these important questions and offers surprising and reassuring answers stackhouse begins by acknowledging the real impediments to christian testimony in north america today and to other faiths in modern societies around the world he shows how pluralism postmodernism skepticism and a host of other factors create a cultural milieu resistant to the christian message and he shows how the arrogance or dogmatism of apologists themselves can alienate rather than attract potential converts indeed stackhouse argues that the crucial experience of conversion cannot be compelled all the apologist can do is lead another to the point where an actual encounter with jesus can take place finally he shows how displaying an attitude of humility instead of merely trying to win religious arguments will help believers offer their neighbors the gift of christ s love drawing on the author s personal experience and written with an engaging directness and an unassuming nature humble apologetics provides sound guidance on how to share christian faith in a postmodern world
