An updated edition of Manning Marable's classic, considered one of the best studies of race and class.

Castro adds his voice to the growing international chorus against neoliberalisation and globalisation.

What do Cape Breton and Colombia have in common? Coal. For one thing, coal mining was the backbone of Cape Breton's industrial economy for more than one hundred years, but the last mine was closed in 2001 when the province's utility company took advantage of neoliberal globalization by importing coal from Colombia. Colombia and Cape Breton represent the loss of well-paid, unionized industrial jobs as a result of neoliberal globalization, the economic hegemony that allows multinational corporations in the global north, primarily North America and Europe, to exploit the natural resources and cheap labour of the global south, Latin America, Africa, and Asia. But the commonalities between Cape Breton and Colombia do not end with coal. There are numerous connections directly related to the capitalist system: militant labour struggles, repression, economic insecurity, population displacement, social inequality, and environmental devastation. The failure of global capitalism uses the examples of Cape Breton and Colombia to illustrate the harsh realities suffered by people throughout the global north and the global south under neoliberal globalization, particularly with regard to socio-economic and environmental issues. Ultimately, it exposes the failure of industrial capitalism and looks toward more sustainable and egalitarian alternatives.

Winner of the 1994 AASA Critics Award, this book offers a sober assessment of power in the U.S. and its K-12 public schools in spite of impressive democratic achievements in schools and society. The hegemonic and raw power of antidemocratic capitalism is significantly greater, the author's critical analysis, which owes a debt to the Western tradition of radical democracy, suggests that hegemony and repression are inextricably connected. Therefore, the hopes for a more genuinely democratic polity and supportive education are problematic. An unflinchingly tough evaluation of the realities and complexities of antidemocratic power and practice is of crucial importance to present democratic projects and the hope for their successful realization in our schools and extramural sites. The challenge of postmodern thought to democratic aspirations is considered also.
