a choice highly recommended title january 2017 this book is an interpretive analysis of political campaigns in america instead of focusing on how campaigns are designed and run it investigates the role campaigns play in our american politics and the close symbiosis between campaigns and those politics the text examines how campaigns are an important manifestation of how we do politics in this country hallmarks of this text include showing how campaigns can undermine our democracy and asking how democratic they and by extension our politics really are demonstrating that the ability of the media to accurately fairly and deeply report on campaigns has been severely compromised both because of the growing distance between campaigns and media outlets and because of the structure of big media corporate ownership and its tight relationship to big money it asks important questions about the media including how do the media reporters in particular cover campaigns what pressures and forces shape what and how they present campaigns what is the impact of the ever increasing chasm separating campaigns and the media how does the close tie between corporate mainstream media and super pac money affect campaign coverage how does the ability of campaigns and media to segment voters into ever smaller slices influence how campaigns are covered tracking the continuing growth of unregulated private unaccountable dark money in campaigns as a threat to our democratic elections and politics democracy rests fundamentally on transparency and accountability sunlight and our campaign laws and norms now allow and encourage exactly the opposite largely because of decisions by the united states supreme court this book offers a discerning narrative on the spectacular rise and fall of the so called celtic tiger economy it depicts ireland as a micro state with a unique reliance on foreign assisted businesses driven in part by a favourable taxation regime it shows that rent seeking by trades unions and property developers contributed to the fall since 2002 although the country s highly centralized government s pre disposition to lobbying has yielded international successes it has also resulted in recurring self inflicted crises since 1970 this volume shows how ireland s export led growth is associated more with the attraction of foreign assisted businesses than with the development of critical masses of internationally competitive indigenous businesses although the success of foreign assisted businesses in the pharmaceutical and finance sectors has been influenced by tax advantages many of these businesses have been involved in highly productive activity in ireland over a number of decades the problem of rent seeking is shown to have undermined irish competitiveness in the internationally traded and sheltered sectors the irish policy mind set is shown to lean towards distribution rather than growth while this has been advantageous for how ireland interacts with other governments and international businesses it has also resulted in a failure to resist the destructive effects of capture by lobbies in conclusion this book considers future opportunities offered by the eu s smart specialization policy and future threats from increased international tax competition it argues that unless irish citizens and policymakers change deep seated attitudes and mind sets towards business development the country s performance for the next number of decades will more likely resemble serial under achievement than that of a high performing eu state the last twenty years have seen an explosion in the development of information technology to the point that people spend a major portion of waking life in online spaces while there are enormous benefits associated with this technology there are also risks that can affect the most vulnerable in our society but also the most confident cybercrime and its victims explores the social construction of violence and victimisation in online spaces and brings together scholars from many areas of inquiry including criminology sociology and cultural media and gender studies the book is organised thematically into five parts part one addresses some broad conceptual and theoretical issues part two is concerned with issues relating to sexual violence abuse and exploitation as well as to sexual expression online part three addresses issues related to race and culture part four addresses concerns around cyberbullying and online suicide grouped together as social violence the final part argues that victims of cybercrime are in general neglected and not receiving the recognition and support they need and deserve it concludes that in the volatile and complex world of cyberspace continued awareness raising is essential for bringing attention to the plight of victims it also argues that there needs to be more support of all kinds for victims as well as an increase in the exposure and punishment of perpetrators drawing on a range of pressing contemporary issues such as online grooming sexting cyber hate cyber bullying and online radicalization this book examines how cyberspace makes us more vulnerable to crime and violence how it gives rise to new forms of surveillance and social control and how cybercrime can be prevented this book explores what remains an under studied aspect of samuel johnson s profile as a person and writer namely his attitude to social improvement the interpretive framework provided here is cross disciplinary and applies perspectives from social and cultural history legal history architectural history and of course english literature this allows johnson s writings to be read against the peculiarities of their historical milieu and reveals johnson in a new light as an advocate of social improvement for human betterment considering the multiplicity of narrative modes that have been employed the book points to the blurred boundaries and overlapping between history testimony and fiction and argues that a future biography of samuel johnson has to recognise that throughout his life he valued the utilitarian aspect of his manifesto as a writer to impart a more charitable attitude in the pursuit of a more caring society
