this book explores the military strategies of the five system determining great powers during the twenty first century the book's point of departure is that analyses of countries' defence strategies should acknowledge that states come in various shapes and sizes and that their strategic choices are affected by their perceptions of their position in the international system and by power asymmetries between more and less resourceful states. This creates a diversity in strategies that is often overlooked in theoretically oriented analyses. The book examines how five major powers – the United States, China, the United Kingdom, France, and Russia – have adjusted their strategies to improve or maintain their relative position and to manage power asymmetries during the twenty first century. It also develops and applies an analytical framework for exploring and categorising the strategies pursued by the five major powers, which combines elements of structural realism with research on power transition theory and status competition. The concluding chapter addresses questions related to stability and change in the present international system. This book will be of interest to students of strategic studies, foreign policy, and international relations.

What is military strategy today in an era when European states seek to de-escalate and avoid armed conflict and where politicians fear the consequences of protracted operations or tactical hazards? Does military strategy have any relevance? This is the first volume to examine current military risks and threats for NATO from a military strategy vantage point. Which strategies are needed? In what ways? Ends means thinking possible as a strategic template. Today the contributors probe the relative importance, utility, and options of military strategy across NATO as it confronts a variety of challenges, old and new. As hybrid threats, new nuclear risks, and conventional force combine in complex ways, they also examine what military strategy and military integration really mean when NATO's multilateral framework is being weakened by degrees of self-interest. They analyse the USA's political and military role in Europe and assess military strategic responses to Russian aggression in Ukraine and the Middle East. Moreover, they study the role of member states' military strategy set against Article 5 and non-Article 5 risks and threats and explore how European states devise and implement military strategic options. This book makes a clear assessment of political level strategy and its implications for military integration.
