twenty five leading contemporary theorists of criminal law tackle a range of foundational issues about the proper aims and structure of the criminal law in a liberal democracy the challenges facing criminal law are many there are crises of over criminalization and over imprisonment penal policy has become so politicized that it is difficult to find any clear consensus on what aims the criminal law can properly serve governments seeking to protect their citizens in the face of a range of perceived threats have pushed the outer limits of criminal law and blurred its boundaries to think clearly about the future of criminal law and its role in a liberal society foundational questions about its proper scope structure and operations must be re examined what kinds of conduct should be criminalized what are the principles of criminal responsibility how should offences and defences be defined the criminal process and the criminal trial need to be studied closely and the purposes and modes of punishment should be scrutinized such a re examination must draw on the resources of various disciplines notably law political and moral philosophy criminology and history it must examine both the inner logic of criminal law and its place in a larger legal and political structure it must attend to the growing field of international criminal law it must consider how the criminal law can respond to the challenges of a changing world topics covered in this volume include the question of criminalization and the proper scope of the criminal law the grounds of criminal responsibility the ways in which offences and defences should be defined the criminal process and its values criminal punishment the relationship between international criminal law and domestic criminal law together the essays provide a picture of the exciting state of criminal law theory today and the basis for further research and debate in the coming years this book is concerned with the aporias or impasses of forgiveness especially in relation to the legacy of the crimes against humanity perpetrated by the nazis and their collaborators during world war ii banki argues that while forgiveness of the holocaust is and will remain impossible we cannot rest upon that impossibility rather the impossibility of forgiveness must be thought in another way in an epoch of worldwidization we may not be able simply to escape the violence of scenes and rhetoric that repeatedly portray apology reconciliation and forgiveness as accomplishable acts accompanied by jacques derrida s thought of forgiveness of the unforgivable and its elaboration in relation to crimes against humanity the book undertakes close readings of literary philosophical and cinematic texts by simon wiesenthal jean améry vladimir jankélévitch robert antelme and eva mozes kor these texts contend with the idea that the crimes of the nazis are inexpiable that they lie beyond any possible atonement or repair banki argues that the juridical concept of crimes against humanity calls for a thought of forgiveness one that would not imply closure of the infinite wounds of the past how could such a forgiveness be thought or dreamed banki shows that if today we cannot simply escape the worldwidization of forgiveness then it is necessary to rethink what forgiveness is the conditions under which it supposedly takes place and especially its relation to justice

the dogs of war

in this book christopher heath wellman offers original theories of political legitimacy and our obligation to obey the law and then building upon these accounts defends a number of distinctive positions concerning the rights and responsibilities individual citizens separatist groups and political states have regarding one another genocide is evil or nothing could be it raises a host of questions about humanity rights justice and reality which are key areas of concern for philosophy strangely however philosophers have tended to ignore genocide even more problematic philosophy and philosophers bear more responsibility for genocide than they have usually admitted in genocide and human rights a philosophical guide an international group of twenty five contemporary philosophers work to correct those deficiencies by showing how philosophy can and should respond to genocide particularly in ways that defend human rights
