this book investigates adaptations of the lady of shalott and elaine of astolat in victorian and post victorian popular culture to explore their engagement with medievalism social constructions of gender and representations of the role of art in society although the figure of elaine first appeared in medieval texts including malory s le morte darthur tennyson s poems about the lady and elaine drew unprecedented response from musicians artists and other authors whose adaptations in some cases inspired further adaptations with chapters on music art and literature including parody young people s literature and historical fiction and fantasy this book seeks to trace the evolution of these characters and the ways in which they reinforce or challenge conventional gender roles represent the present s relationship to the past and highlight the power of art african american women have played a pivotal part in rock and roll from laying its foundations and singing chart topping hits to influencing some of the genre s most iconic acts despite this black women s importance to the music s history has been diminished by narratives of rock as a mostly white male enterprise in black diamond queens maureen mahon draws on recordings press coverage archival materials and interviews to document the history of african american women in rock and roll between the 1950s and the 1980s mahon details the musical contributions and cultural impact of big mama thornton lavern baker betty davis tina turner merry clayton labelle the shirelles and others demonstrating how dominant views of gender race sexuality and genre affected their careers by uncovering this hidden history of black women in rock and roll mahon reveals a powerful sonic legacy that continues to reverberate into the twenty first century this work traces the impact of a differentiated curriculum on girls education in st louis public schools from 1870 to 1930 its central argument is that the premise upon which a differentiated curriculum is founded that schooling ought to differ among students in order prepare each for his or her place in the social order actually led to academic decline the attention given to the intersection of gender race and social class and its combined effect on girls schooling places this text in the new wave of critical historical scholarship in the field of educational research

psychology studies of sex differences are as old as the field of psychology and they have been conducted in every sub field of the discipline there are probably many reasons for the popularity of these studies but three reasons seem to be most prominent first social psychological studies of person perception show that sex is especially salient in social groups it is the first thing people notice about others and it is one of the things we remember best fiske haslam fiske 1991 stangor lynch duan glass 1992 for example people may not remember who uttered a witty remark but they are likely to remember whether the quip came from a woman or a man second many people hold firm beliefs that aspects of physiology suit men and women for particular social roles men's greater upper body strength makes them better candidates for manual labor and their greater height gives the impression that they would make good leaders i.e. people we look up to women's reproductive capacity and the caretaking tasks e.g. breastfeeding baby minding that accompany it make them seem suitable for other roles that require gentleness and nurturance third the logic that underlies hypothesis testing in the sciences is focused on difference researchers design their studies with the hope that they can reject the null hypothesis that experimental groups do not differ extrait de la couverture of the numerous available studies on forest management in asia only a few mention the role of women or pay attention to gender relations even projects are largely designed in terms of households or communities where men are the decision makers and the owners or managers of forests this important volume views gender relations as a crucial factor in the management of land and forests and maintains that the continuing invisibility of women in these areas only compounds poverty shortages and the increased workloads of forest based women based on fieldwork conducted in several forest societies in china thailand india and malaysia the contributors explore the changes in gender relations within indigenous communities from matrilineal and or gender egalitarian systems to ones where male domination is the norm over two million american women hunt by taking up weapons for the explicit purpose of killing they are shattering one of western culture's oldest and most firmly entrenched taboos the image of a woman armed and dangerous is profoundly threatening to our collective psyche and it is rejected by macho males and radical feminists alike woman the hunter juxtaposes unsettlingly beautiful accounts of the author's own experiences hunting deer antelope and elk with an argument that builds on the work of thinkers from aldo leopold to clarissa pinkola estes exploring how women and men relate to nature and violence mary zeiss stange demonstrates how false assumptions about women and about hunting permeate contemporary thought her book is a profound critique of our society's evasion of issues that make us uncomfortable and it culminates in a surprising claim that only by appreciating the value of hunting can we come to understand what it means to be human controversial and original defying easy stereotypes woman the hunter is sure to provoke strong reactions in almost every reader
