eritrea as home of nine ethno linguistic and multi faith groups has the potential ingredients of lethal identity based conflicts however in spite of its potentially conflict prone social structure there have never been in the country s history generalized ethnic or faith based violent conflicts save the limited skirmishes that took place in asmara in february 1950 between the youth of the muslim league and the youth of the unionist party the civil wars between the elf and eplf during the first half and late 1970s and early 1980s had nothing or little to do with ethnicity or religion publisher s website refuting the argument to choose between the politics of recognition and the politics of redistribution justice interruptus integrates the best aspects of both what does it mean to think critically about politics at a time when inequality is increasing worldwide when struggles for the recognition of difference are eclipsing struggles for social equality and when we lack any credible vision of an alternative to the present order philosopher nancy fraser claims that the key is to overcome the false oppositions of postsocialist commonsense refuting the view that we must choose between the politics of recognition and the politics of redistribution fraser argues for an integrative approach that encompasses the best aspects of both critical reflections draws together the multi disciplinary research of scholars working in on cities across southeast asia the fourteen essays collected in the volume are organised into three thematic sections re conceptualisation competition and intervention collectively these reflections contribute to and interrogate the expanding urban and regional studies literature the volume constitutes a critical corrective to the existing literature which all too often seeks to diagnose contemporary urban trends everywhere from a small number of mostly western paradigmatic cases yet while acknowledging the increasing interconnectedness and shared global orientation of most cities in southeast asia the volume is wary of positing an equally generalising regional model individually these essays attend to the diversity of contemporary urban experiences in southeast asia learning critical reflection documents the actual learning experiences of social work students and practitioners it explores how a more in depth understanding of the process of learning combined with an analysis of how to critically reflect will help improve the learning process the contributors are all professionals who have learnt in a formalised way how to critically reflect on their practice they speak in depth and with feeling about their experiences how downsides and upsides worked together to transform the way they understood themselves their professional identity and their practice existing literature about critical reflection is reviewed identifying the details of learning and pulling no punches in recognising the difficulty and complexity of becoming transformed through this learning process the editors of this book also contribute their own reflections on learning how to teach critical reflection and include the findings of a research study conducted on students learning edited by two experienced educators this book showcases the process of learning from the perspective of the learners in order that educators and students managers supervisors and frontline practitioners alike may make the most of opportunities to critically reflect in both educational and workplace settings it should be considered essential reading for social work students practitioners and educators jean baptiste du bos critical reflections on poetry and painting first published in french in 1719 is one of the seminal works of modern aesthetics du bos rejected the seventeenth century view that works of art are assessed by reason instead he believed audience members have sentiments in response to artworks their sentiments are fainter versions of those they would feel in response to actually seeing what the work of art imitates du bos was influenced by john locke s empiricism and in turn had a major impact on virtually every major eighteenth century contributor to philosophy of art including voltaire montesquieu diderot rousseau herder lessing mendelssohn kames gerard and hume this is the first modern annotated and scholarly edition of the critical reflections in any language
