this monograph presents a critical analysis of the body of historical writing on the history of the jewish population in poznan in the era of the prussian rule 1772 1918 including the identification and verification of the attendant myths and stereotypes the interest in the polish edition of this book was considerable similarly noticeable was the academic response to the title despite its ostensibly local subject matter while this study was also noticed abroad the language barrier has severely impeded its impact this prompted the author to work towards the english edition of this book hoping it would find its way into global academic circulation some changes and additions were made in the english version it includes an updated survey of scholarship on this subject of the past twenty years a response to reviews engaging with the polish edition and some general reflections on the evolution of historiography in the recent years despite the large number of books and studies written about metternich there is still a period of his political career that scholars neglect to this day the 1840s this book offers an analysis of metternich's german policy in the years 1840 1848 and thus fills a gap in metternich studies analysing this period is important due to the fact that over the course of those less than nine years metternich lost his influence within the german confederation he represented a certain way of behaving moderate calm and reconciliatory but it was an attitude which was rejected during the period of rising mass nationalism nevertheless he continued to endeavour to steer this escalating nationalism and by applying calming policies prevent it from causing armed conflicts in europe since metternich conceived the german confederation at the congress of vienna in 1815 as one of the pillars of the european peace settlement the issue is viewed from the perspective of european crises of the time from the rhine crisis to the swiss civil war similarly it presents his policy in a broader context of economic and social history the book follows revisionist research on metternich and refutes some of the clichés still associated with his policy europe's restorations were characterised by their evolving dialectics the chapters in this first volume address the key questions and controversies of napoleonic history from a national and international perspective from the re-ordering of the european world through the tools of intervention occupation and diplomacy to the creation of new constitutional monarchies across france scandinavia and germany the volume outlines the processes that realigned national priorities and the accompanying dynamics of social and political identity in a structure that makes sense of what luigi mascilli miglierini describes as the fiendishly complex process of reconstructing order in post napoleonic europe this collection of essays brings together experts in the field to set a new precedent for transnational research frameworks in the study of the european restorations how did ministers journalists academics artists and subjects in the german lands imagine war during the nineteenth century the napoleonic wars had been the bloodiest in europe s history directly affecting millions of germans yet their long term consequences on individuals and on politics are still poorly understood this study makes sense of contemporaries memories and histories of the revolutionary and napoleonic campaigns within a much wider context of press reportage of wars elsewhere in europe and overseas debates about military service and the reform of germany s armies revolution and counter revolution and individuals experiences of violence and death in their everyday lives for the majority of the populations of the german states wars during an era of conscription were not merely a matter of history and memory rather they concerned subjects hopes fears and expectations of the future this is the second volume of mark hewitson s study of the violence of war in the german lands during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries it investigates the complex relationship between military conflicts and the violent acts of individual soldiers in particular it considers the contradictory impact of pacification in civilian life and exposure to increasingly destructive technologies of killing during war time this contradiction reached its nineteenth century apogee during the wars of unification leaving an ambiguous imprint on post war discussions of military conflict
