the uprising which shook France in May 1968 also had a revolutionary effect on the country's most prominent film journal under editors Jean Louis Comolli and Jean Narboni. Cahiers du Cinéma embarked on a militant turn that would govern the journal's work over the next five years. Inspired by Marxist and psychoanalytic theory, the red years of Cahiers du Cinéma produced a theoretical outpouring that was seminal for the formation of film studies and is still of vital relevance for the contemporary audiovisual landscape. The red years of Cahiers du Cinéma 1968-1973 gives an overview of this period in the journal's history and its aftermath, combining biographical accounts of the critics who wrote for Cahiers in the post-1968 period with theoretical explorations of their key texts.

This book attends to what in French since the 1980s has been called the passeur, the figure of the intellectual mediator, translator or journalist who is also a socialized being in the world. The volume sets out from biographical contexts in such a way that the work as a whole is offered as a gallery of portraits leading from one kind of cultural understanding to another, and then another. Geographically, the range is broadly European: England, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Poland, Spain, and Switzerland. Though the aim is never to display how national identities arose, nor is this range a matter of covering the field, the figures treated were all important in their own right, and yet too often they receive scholarly attention only in passing. The singular identity studied here, if there is one, could be Europe's, but the theme emphasized now and then is also that of the internationalization of intellectual activity in a very long eighteenth century. The bookend chapters involving the understanding of the Orient reinforce the internationalization and the fostering of a European identity. The volume aims less to highlight or track specific ideas transported from one cultural context to another, though there are necessarily many examples given, it proposes instead to illustrate the evolution of post-humanist cultural activity in Europe by beginning with a series of studies in which debate arises from religious positions, not only Protestant but Muslim, Catholic, Jesuit, Jansenist, and Jewish traditions, and closing with debate that becomes philosophical and encyclopedic. As such, the volume documents a characteristic view of the transformation of early modern intellectual activity as its center moves from religion to philosophy and it thereby draws special attention to the essays in the middle of the volume these deal with figures active towards the end of the 17th and the beginning of the 18th centuries and their abilities difficulties and conflicts in finding new spaces for intellectual life outside of religious and political institutions in public discussions of philosophy toleration journalism law and the curious spatialization we refer to as anglophilia
