on a trip here from scotland david dobson searched the archives of north and south carolina and found a mass of material proving the presence of a large number of scots in the carolinas before and after the revolution he located similar records in university libraries and historical societies and he also found in the 1850 federal census more information on persons of scottish origin the result of this research appears here in volume 1 of directory of scots in the carolinas see also directory of scots in the carolinas 1680 1830 volume 2 in this work mr dobson presents for the first time a comprehensive list of scottish settlers in the carolinas from 1680 to 1830 in general the details provided include age place and date of birth and often names of parents names of spouse and children occupation place of residence and the date of emigration from scotland about 6 000 scots are identified in this book and a small number are listed in dobson s scottish settlers series but the majority 90 or so are listed here for the first time before 1650 only a few hundred scots had trickled into the american colonies but by the early 1770s the number had risen to 10 000 per year a conservative estimate of the total number of scots who settled in north america prior to 1785 is around 150 000 who were these scots what did they do where did they settle what factors motivated their emigration dobson s work based on original research on both sides of the atlantic comprehensively identifies the scottish contribution to the settlement of north america prior to 1785 with particular emphasis on the seventeenth century patroons and periaguas explores the intricately interwoven and colorful creole maritime legacy of native americans africans enslaved and free african americans and europeans who settled along the rivers and coastline near the burgeoning colonial port city of charleston south carolina colonial south carolina from a european perspective was a water filled world where boatmen of diverse ethnicities adopted and adapted maritime skills learned from local experiences or imported from africa and the old world to create a new world society and culture lynn b harris describes how they crewed together in galleys as an ad hoc colonial navy guarding settlements on the edisto kiawah and savannah rivers rowed and raced plantation log boats called periaguas fished for profits and worked side by side as laborers in commercial shipyards building sailing ships for the atlantic coastal trade the caribbean islands and europe watercraft were of paramount importance for commercial transportation and travel and the skilled people who built and operated them were a distinctive class in south carolina enslaved patroons boat captains and their crews provided an invaluable service to planters who had to bring their staple products rice indigo deerskins and cotton to market but they were also purveyors of information for networks of rebellious communications and illicit trade harris employs historical records visual images and a wealth of archaeological evidence embedded in marshes underwater on riverbeds or exhibited in local museums to illuminate clues and stories surrounding these interactions and activities a pioneering underwater archaeologist she brings sources and personal experience to bear as she weaves vignettes of the ongoing process of different peoples adapting to each other and their new world that is central to our understanding of the south carolina maritime landscape
