in this book the author aims to explore the impact of 19th century translations of the bible into indigenous languages with a specific focus on the setswana translation the translations have had a profound effect on the religio cultural practices of the indigenous people leading to erosion and alteration of their traditions and identities i argue that it is crucial to consider the translator s intentions and the associated literature such as journals and letters to understand the translation process comprehensively the setswana bible was the first to be translated in africa and tracing the intentions of robert moffat the first translator is imperative to understanding the impact of the translation on the receptor culture the methodology adopted is interdisciplinary drawing from linguistics african languages history english literature cultural studies black studies and theology i analyse the impact of the 1840 gospel of luke in the context of setswana culture in south africa and my findings demonstrate that translations cannot be distinct from the translator to gain a deep understanding of the implications of such texts i adopt a methodology that analyses significant historical literature and primary sources including the records and works of the british and foreign bible society the history of the london missionary society and the journals letters and writings of missionaries such as robert moffat and john campbell

this book is about the design of a setswana corpus for lexicography while various corpora have been compiled and a variety of corpora based research has been attempted in african languages no effort has been made towards corpus design additionally although extensive analysis of the setswana language has been done by missionaries grammarians and linguists since the 1800s none of this research is in corpus design most research has been largely on the grammatical study of the language the recent corpora research in african languages in general has been on the use of corpora for the compilation of dictionaries and little of it is in corpus design pioneers of this kind of corpora research in african languages are prinsloo and de schryver 1999 de schryver and prisloo 2000 and 2001 and gouws and prisloo 2005 because of a lack of research in corpora design particularly in african languages this book attempts to fill that gap especially for setswana it is hoped that the finding of this study will inspire similar designs in other languages comparable to setswana we explore corpus design by focusing on measuring a variety of text types for lexical richness at comparable token points the study explores the question of whether a corpus compiled for lexicography must comprise a variety of texts drawn from different text types or whether the quality of retrieved information for lexicographic purposes from a corpus comprising diverse text varieties could be equally extracted from a corpus with a single text type this study therefore determines whether linguistic variability is crucial in corpus design for lexicography
