written on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the publication of piero sraffa s production of commodities by means of commodities the papers selected and contained in sraffa and the reconstruction of economic theory account for the work completed around the two central aspects of his contribution to economic analysis namely the criticism of the neoclassical or marginalist theory of value and distribution and the reconstruction of economic theory along the lines of the classical approach divided into three volumes sraffa and the reconstruction of economic theory debates the most fruitful routes for advancement in this field and their implications for applied and policy analysis this second volume focuses on the theory of output and growth as developed in the modern classical approach on the basis of the extension to the long run of the keynesian principle of effective demand and on the implications of the revival of the classical approach for policy analysis and for understanding the evolution of the international economic order in the last few decades this book demonstrates falsified economic performance of global economies when the environment is not recognised as a capital and when the ecosystem is overlooked towards sustainable development seck begins with an analysis of standard macroeconomic framework and policy practice he argues with reference to environmental accounting literature that environmental capital must form an integral component of economic measurement this paves the way for an alternative environmental macroeconomics framework for policy analysis that promotes sustainable development the book demonstrates how environmental capital can be measured with reference to select oecd countries and provides a methodology for analysing how macroeconomic goals are related to a steady state economy seck then concludes with a summary of the conflict between current economic growth and ecosystem preservation and outlines possible policy improvements and directions for research rethinking sustainable development is an invaluable reference for policymakers as well as researchers and students of environmental economics sustainable development and macroeconomics

this book is an attempt to explain to the layperson what contemporary economics is about it starts on the assumption that most economics is just refined common sense and clearly explains the key ideas associated with each issue all the main topics of academic economics are considered the theory of individual choice the labour market the competition between firms international trade economic growth the stock market unemployment and money the general principles are sketched first without maths or diagrams and then discussed in the context of topical problems such as the collapse of communism in eastern europe the lack of development in the third world countries the contrast between market forces and the protection of the environment showing how economics is not necessarily a dry academic pursuit whereas the economics discipline possesses a highly refined theoretical apparatus to analyze the effects of government behaviour on the economy it has not yet managed to fully develop a positively formulated economic theory of politics that would permit the integration of the decision making processes of voters parties and governments with those of consumers and firms considerable recent advances notwithstanding the large and heterogeneous body of literature has so far remained outside the economic mainstream the paper surveys the main approaches used to endogenize democratic elements and assesses the underlying reasons for researchers renewed interest in this field
