this book shows how behavior analysis can be applied to teaching reading and writing to primary school students and to special populations such as children with intellectual and hearing disabilities and illiterate adults originally published in portuguese this contributed volume is now translated into english and presents for the first time to international researchers and students a comprehensive overview of a research program developed for more than three decades in brazil which gave birth to a unique teaching program based on the concept of stimulus equivalence the learning to read and write in small steps the book is divided into four parts the first part presents the theoretical framework and the historical context in which the teaching program was developed by the group led by drs julio cesar de rose and deisy das graças de souza currently organized in the national science and technology on behavior cognition and learning inct ecce the second part describes the modules that make up the learning to read and write in small steps teaching program the third part presents results of empirical research conducted with children with intellectual and hearing disabilities and illiterate adults finally the fourth part presents contributions from other areas of knowledge such as speech therapy linguistics and education to the understanding of reading and writing and possible dialogues between them and behavior analysis contributions of behavior analysis to reading and writing comprehension will be of interest to researchers and students in the fields of psychology and education interested in the application of behavior analysis to teaching and learning processes it will also be a valuable resource for professionals directly working in educational institutions such as elementary school teachers and psycho pedagogues the translation of the original manuscript in portuguese was done with the help of artificial intelligence the present version has been revised technically and linguistically by the authors in collaboration with a professional translator although most children learn language relatively quickly as many as 10 per cent of them are slow to start speaking and are said to have developmental language disorder dld children with dld are managed by a variety of different professionals in different countries are offered different services for different periods of time and are given a variety of different therapeutic treatments to date there has been no attempt to evaluate these different practices managing children with developmental language disorder theory and practice across europe and beyond does just this reporting on the findings of a survey carried out as part of the work of cost action is1406 a european research network law and colleagues analyse the results of a pan european survey looking at how different services are delivered in different counties at the cultural factors underpinning such services and the theoretical frameworks used to inform practice in different countries the book also provides a snapshot of international practices in a set of 35 country specific vignettes providing a benchmark for future developments but also calling attention to the work of key practitioners and thinkers in each of the countries investigated this book will be essential reading for practitioners working with children with language impairments those commissioning services and policy in the field and students of speech and language therapy this research topic is the second edition of fluency and reading comprehension in typical readers and dyslexics readers volume i this second edition research topic is focused on the characterization of the reading writing difficulties and their comorbidities and in the analysis of evidence based recommendations for early interventions and treatment of these difficulties within the fields of neuropsychology speech language pathology and educational psychology reading involves decoding and comprehension components and to become efficient it requires a large number of cognitive and linguistic processes among those decoding failures can have different origins such as deficits in phonological and or visual processing in addition a child with reading difficulties might also have problems in the acquisition of writing and handwriting performance this is an important point to be discussed as reading and writing both suffer interference from vocabulary acquisition linguistic skills memory skills reading and writing practices and literacy methods these processes become important only when the professional needs to deal with students presenting learning difficulties difficulty in using the knowledge of conversion rules between grapheme phoneme to word reading construction or phoneme grapheme for writing can be identified in schoolchildren with dyslexia dysgraphia and dysortography being a specific learning disorder with a neurological etiology in addition there is established evidence of a speech language processing basis students with specific learning disabilities can show a range of cognitive difficulties e g rapid naming executive functioning working memory these presented difficulties interfere in their learning process impairing their learning development eating disorders have traditionally been considered apart from public health concerns about increasing obesity it is evident that these problems are however related in important ways comorbid obesity and eating disorder is increasing at a faster rate than either obesity or eating disorders alone and one in five people with obesity also presents with an eating disorder commonly but not limited to binge eating disorder new disorders have emerged such as normal weight or atypical anorexia nervosa however research and practice too often occurs in parallel with a failure to understand the weight disorder spectrum and consequences of co morbidity that then contributes to poorer outcomes for people living with a larger size and an eating disorder urgently needed are trials that will inform more effective assessment treatment and care where body size and eating disorder symptoms are both key to the research question language is crucial in child development therefore general questions such as what are the possible challenges in language acquisition or such as how well the my child is doing are commonly present for researchers clinicians teachers and parents parent child interaction offers a privileged setting to observe children s behavior in multiple communicative situations which often is only available to the parents caregivers for this reason within the broad range of methods used to assess children s development parental questionnaires are widely used being a non invasive and inexpensive instrument to obtain information which is otherwise difficult to obtain data obtained with the many questionnaires covering various aspects of child development and communicative competence are equally relevant for basic research and everyday clinical practice development and use of parental questionnaires as well as data interpretation frequently require an interdisciplinary and cross sector approach bringing together developmental psychologists and practitioners this interdisciplinarity is assumed but rarely addressed directly
