this book explores how african youth are depicted in contemporary literature and popular culture and discusses the different ways by which they attempt to construct personal and cultural identities through popular culture and social media outlets the contributors approach the subject from an interdisciplinary perspective looking at images in children s and adolescent literature from africa and the african diaspora from nollywood and hollywood movies from popular magazines and from youth cultures encountered directly through field experiences the findings reveal that there are many stereotypes about africa african youth and black cultures and that african youth are aware of these since they juggle multiple identities shaped by their ethnicities race and religion it is often a challenge for them to define themselves as they also share a global youth culture that transcends these cultural markers some take advantage of media outlets to voice their concerns and participate in political struggles others simply use these to promote their personal interests contributors ponder the challenges involved in constructing unique identities offering ideas on how african youth are doing so successfully or not in different parts of the continent and the african diaspora and thus offer new possibilities for youth studies this volume demonstrates that television comedies are conduits through which we might resist normative ways of thinking about cultural crises by drawing on gramscian notion of crisis and the understanding that crises are overlapping interconnected and mutually constitutive the essays in this collection demonstrate that situation comedies do more than make us laugh they also help us understand the complexities of our social world s moments of crisis each chapter takes up the televisual representation of a modern cultural crisis in a contemporary sitcom and is grounded in the extensive body of literature that suggests that levity is a powerful mechanism to make sense of and cope with these difficult cultural experiences divided into thematic sections that highlight crises of institutions and systems identity and representation and speculation and futurism this book will interest scholars of media and cultural studies political economy communication studies and humor studies when first published in 1985 elements of argument changed the way that argument was taught in college composition courses through its pioneering emphasis on the easy to teach toulmin model of argument the book quickly became the best seller in its market and has maintained its popularity with a mix of accessible instruction lively examples and compelling readings thorough but not intimidating elements of argument presents everything students need to learn about research and write arguments a new coauthor donna hasty winchell draws on her own experience teaching with elements of argument to enhance the writing instruction and bring in a fresh group of readings and topics that will appeal to a new generation of students in attempting to characterize this vast land as a whole rasputin begins with yermak whose cossack detachments crossed the ural mountains into siberia in the 1580s and traces the rapid russian exploration conquest and colonization of siberia through the centuries to today he looks at the peculiar physical and character traits of the siberian russian type and at the gap between dreams and reality that has plagued russians in siberia
