looking at the work of Junot Díaz, Cristina García, Julia Alvarez and other Latino authors who are U.S. citizens, Marta Caminero Santangelo examines how writers are increasingly expressing their solidarity with undocumented immigrants through storytelling. These writers create community and a sense of peoplehood that includes non-citizen Latino. As this volume also foregrounds the narratives of unauthorized migrants themselves, showing how their stories are emerging into the public sphere, immigration and citizenship are multifaceted issues and the voices are myriad. They challenge common interpretations of illegal immigration, explore inevitable traumas and ethical dilemmas, protest their own silencing in immigration debates, and even capitalize on the topic for the commercial market. Yet these texts all seek to affect political discourse by advancing the possibility of empathy across lines of ethnicity and citizenship status. As border enforcement strategies escalate along with political rhetoric, detentions and deaths, these counternarratives are more significant than ever before and their perspectives cannot be ignored. What we are witnessing, argues Caminero Santangelo, is a mass mobilization of stories. This growing body of literature is critical to understanding not only the Latino immigrant experience but also alternative visions of nation and belonging.

Odyssey is a town filled with wonder, surprises, and even a hint of danger. As Mark Prescott, Jack Davis, and their friends learn in these four stories, Mark learns a new perspective about the people around him. In Lights Out at Camp, what a nut the king's quest is an imagination station adventure where Mark experiences how God is at work in our world. Jack Davis gets tangled up in a dangerous web of intrigue. In Danger Lies Ahead, Patti's future becomes a difficult lesson in truth and consequences. In A Carnival of Secrets, the complex nature of globalization increasingly requires a comparative approach to literature in order to understand how migration and commodity flows impact aesthetic production and expressive practices. This special issue of Symbolism: An International Journal of Critical Aesthetics explores the trans-American dimensions of Latina/o literature.
