taking issue with those who see recent social transformations as an extension of modernity the author contends that social theory must confront an epochal change from the modern era to a new era of globality in which human beings can conceive of forces at work on a global scale and in which they espouse values that take the globe as their reference point the book begins by assessing the problems of writing about modernity showing how narratives of an endlessly self perpetuating modern age were intrinsic to the modern project the attempt by enlightenment philosophers to transform the everyday world in accord with science and logic under the auspices of the nation state now we are beginning to realize that the nation state and the modern project cannot renew themselves endlessly through expansion instead the author contends the age has culminated in its own dissolution and globality has supplanted modernity as the basis for action and social organization in theorizing the global age he considers the worldwide environmental consequences of aggregate human activities the reconception of human security in the age of nuclear weapons technological advances in communication systems the rise of a global economy and the growing reflexivity of global consciousness as people and groups begin to refer to the globe as the frame for their beliefs the book concludes by examining the consequences of the global age thesis for politics identifying a new popular construction of the state that the author terms performative citizenship in the modern age the nation state was the central power and citizens were beneficiaries of that power with rights and duties in the global age citizens respond to the lack of central power by creating or performing the state themselves the global managerial class uses the skills learned in the bureaucracy of the nation state to bring pressure on national governments in the interests of global economic environmental or human rights issues many authors who discuss the idea of globalization see it as continuing pre established paths of development of modern societies post modernist writers by contrast have lost sight of the importance of historical narrative altogether martin albrow argues that neither group is able to recognize the new era which stares us in the face a history of the present needs an explicit epochal theory to understand the transition to the global age when globality displaces modernity there is a general decentering of state government economy culture and community albrow calls for a recasting of the theory of such institutions and the relations between them he finds an open potential for society to recover its abiding significance in the face of the declining nation state at the same time a new kind of citizenship is emerging this important book will provoke both radicals and conservatives its scholarship ranges widely across the social sciences and humanities it is bound to promote wide cross disciplinary debate in 1972 an image became an icon blue marble a photograph of the earth as seen from outer space the picture features prominently the globe s water covered surface the ocean connects nature and culture in the modern world within the time span of 100 years the sea changed its cultural meaning from a dangerous place to an endangered environment this volume traces diverse processes of oceanic transformation in the anthropocene it follows scientists seafarers diplomats and filmmakers from ship decks to the arenas of political decision making on land the essays lead from underwater dumping grounds to islands in the south pacific tiny organisms like plankton and charismatic megafauna like whales accompanied the human voyages the presence of the animals challenges common notions of human culture the global age has to take non human agents into account to fully understand the cultural history of the seas a pioneering approach to social theory that rectifies overreliance on western historical experience of development and modernization in this pioneering volume leading international scholars argue for the development of a new approach to social theory that draws on regional studies for the conduct of comparative analysis in the global age social theory and regional studies in the global age moves beyond facile generalizations based on the historical experience of modernization in the west by highlighting differences rather than similarities and contrasts rather than commonalities and by examining civilizational processes and culturally specific developmental patterns distinctive of different world regions essays combine comparative and historical sociology with civilizational analysis and the study of multiple and alternative modernities different patterns of modernization are compared within the framework of global local compressed communication and interaction that results from globalization the introductory chapter puts the present effort in the context of the seminal work of three generations of comparative sociologists and what follows is a penetrating analysis of modernization and globality opening the way for rectifying the erasure of the historical experience of a very sizeable portion of humankind from the foundation of social theory
