ancient authors commonly compared writing with painting the sculpting of the soul was also a common philosophical theme art craft and theology in fourth century christian authors takes its starting point from such figures to recover a sense of ancient authorship as craft the ancient concept of craft ars techne spans high or fine art and practical or applied arts it unites the beautiful and the useful it includes both skills or practices like medicine and music and productive arts like painting sculpting and the composition of texts by using craft as a guiding concept for understanding fourth christian authorship this book recovers a sense of them engaged in a shared practice which is both beautiful and theologically useful which shapes souls but which is also engaged in the production of texts it focuses on greek writers especially the cappadocians basil of caesarea gregory of nazianzus and gregory of nysa and john chrysostom all of whom were trained in rhetoric through a detailed examination of their use of two particular literary techniques ekphrasis and prosōpopoeia it shows how they adapt and experiment with them in order to make theological arguments and in order to evoke a response from their readership responding to many recent calls for redress and restitution richardson summarises the historical and current situation and attributes its problematics to the fact that theorists and historians have taken the concept art as a generic that includes both design and craft which are actually and validly distinguishable from art by application of the concept functional or else ignored the two entirely considering the concept function al he maintains calls into question the view that the three may be sub classes of the one class whereas in a work of art typically there is a resolution of the tension between form and content in works of design and craft the resolution is between form and function how this recognition can clarify the issue informs the entire book the book s other major thesis is the realisation that aesthetic values are inherently human and that therefore they apply not only to art but to life in general far from being frivolous or a mere emotion the aesthetic is a sense of equivalent psychic status to sight and hearing and like them is employed at almost every moment of our daily lives which fact grounds art design and craft deeply in human life this is reflected in the universal use of the human form including the exhibition of sexual characteristics in art the eternal conflict between making art and making a living from making art is examined and contrasted to the rarely recognised but positive role of design in planning and industry richardson also critiques common theories of representation and composition including creativity albertian perspective and scientific and geometric theories of beauty and composition also the relevance of the camera and the computer in the field from diversity comes strength and wisdom this was the guiding principle for selecting the articles in this collection because there is no single voice identity history or cultural experience that represents the women of the first nations a realistic picture will have many facets accordingly the authors in women of the first nations include native and non native scholars feminists and activists from across canada their work examines various aspects of aboriginal women s lives from a variety of theoretical and personal perspectives they discuss standard media representations as well as historical and current realities they bring new perspectives to discussions on aboriginal art literature historical and cultural contributions and they offer diverse viewpoints on present economic environmental and political issues this collection counters the marginalization and silencing of first nations women s voices and reflects the power strength and wisdom inherent in their lives
