within the broad field of contemporary literature horror fiction has only recently developed into a genre which modern scholars may legitimately regard as being worthy of critical attention this comparative study provides ample proof that horror fiction can be more profound and revealing than many literary critics imagined the only study of its kind this book offers detailed critical analysis of the child in horror fiction with special emphasis on themes relating to the child's social position within the family and its war against parents or authority figures as well as its various functions as victim, evil, innocent and monster. Special attention is given to the child's consistent stylized portrayal in horror fiction which forms a sharp contrast to the appearance of children both in other genres and in real life.

This is the first monograph devoted to all three gospel versions of the story of Jesus walking on the sea. Its primary aim is a more precise determination of the literary genre which does justice to the text in the three gospels. It proposes a new explanation of the literary genre through a comparative analysis with Jewish intertestamental, Qumranic and New Testament literature. The more precise designation of the literary genre as a sea rescue epiphany forms the methodological basis for arriving at a more exact determination of the meaning of the story. This features a new detailed investigation into the Old Testament background of the major motif of Jesus walking on the sea. The NT story of Jesus walking on the sea occurs in the gospels of Matthew 14:22-33, Mark 6:45-52 and John 6:15b-21.

Focusing primarily on selected fiction by William Faulkner and Toni Morrison, this book explores the myths embedded in historical and modern artifacts such as the high-topped shoe and high-heeled slipper and their impact on the construction of ethnic and gender roles. Combining anthropology and women's studies, this work is an interesting new study of race, gender, class and ethnicity in literature.

A guide to writing the essay and writing across the curriculum, this title offers advice on developing and polishing prose with an emphasis on style and process.

Abortion, physician-assisted suicide, same-sex marriages, embryonic stem cell research, poverty, crime: what is a faithful Christian response? The God of the Bible is unquestionably a God of justice, yet Christians have had their differences as to how human government and the church should bring about a just social order. Although Christians share many deep and significant theological convictions, differences that threaten to divide them have often surrounded the matter of how the church collectively and Christians individually ought to engage the public square. What is the mission of the church? What is the purpose of human government? How ought they to be related to each other? How should social injustice be redressed? The five noted contributors to this Spectrum volume answer these questions from within their distinctive Christian theological traditions, as well as responding to the other four positions through the presentations and ensuing dialogue. We come to see more clearly what the differences are, where their positions overlap and why they diverge. The contributors and the positions taken include Clarke E. Cochran, a Catholic perspective; Derek H. Davis, a classical separation perspective; Ronald J. Sider, an Anabaptist perspective; Corwin F. Smidt, a principled pluralist perspective; and J. Philip Wogaman, a social justice perspective. This book will be instructive for anyone seeking to grasp the major Christian alternatives and desiring to pursue a faithful corporate and individual response to the social issues that face us. Spectrum Multiview books offer a range of viewpoints on contested topics within Christianity, giving contributors the opportunity to present their position and also respond to others in this dynamic publishing format.
