on role of family in photography while written sources on the history of greece have been studied extensively no systematic attempt has been made to examine photography as an important cultural and material process this is surprising given that modern greece and photography are almost peers both are cultural products of the 1830s and both actively converse with modernity camera graeca photographs narratives materialities fills this lacuna it is the first inter disciplinary volume to examine critically and in a theorised manner the entanglement of greece with photography the book argues that photographs and the photographic process as a whole have been instrumental in the reproduction of national imagination in the consolidation of the nation building process and in the generation and dissemination of state propaganda at the same time it is argued that the photographic field constitutes a site of memory and counter memory where various social actors intervene actively and stake their discursive material and practical claims as such the volume will be of relevance to scholars and photographers worldwide the book is divided into four tightly integrated parts the first imag in ing greece shows that the consolidation of greek national identity constituted a material cum representational process the projection of an imagery although some photographic production sits uneasily within the national canon and may even undermine it the second part photographic narratives alternative histories demonstrates the narrative function of photographs in diary keeping and in photobooks it also examines the constitution of spectatorship through the combination of text and image and the role of photography as a process of materializing counter hegemonic discourses and practices the third part photographic matter realities foregrounds the role of photography in materializing state propaganda national memory and war the final part photographic ethnographies the narrative turn in the humanities which expanded the study of narrative to various disciplines has found a correlate in the medial turn in narratology long restricted to language based literary fiction narratology has found new life in the recognition that storytelling can take place in a variety of media and often combines signs belonging to different semiotic categories visual auditory linguistic and perhaps even tactile the essays gathered in this volume apply the newly gained awareness of the expressive power of media to particular texts demonstrating the productivity of a medium aware analysis through the examination of a wide variety of different media ranging from widely studied such as literature and film to new neglected or non standard ones such as graphic novels photography television musicals computer games and advertising they address some of the most fundamental questions raised by the medial turn in narratology how can narrative meaning be created in media other than language how do different types of signs collaborate with each other in so called multi modal works and what new forms of narrativity are made possible by the emergence of digital media
