the teen period she was a beautiful well developed girl of thirteen her bright eager face with its changing expression was a fascination at all times it seemed unusually earnest and serious that particular morning as she stood waiting the opportunity to speak to me she had asked to wait until the others had gone and her manner as she hesitated even then to speak made me ask are you in trouble edith no not exactly trouble i don t know whether we ought to ask you but all of us girls think well we wish we could have a mirror in the locker room couldn t we it s dreadful to go into school without knowing how your hair looks or anything i couldn t help laughing her manner was so tragic that the mirror seemed the most important thing in the educational system just then i said i would see what could be done about it and felt sure that what all the girls wanted could be supplied she thanked me heartily and when she entered her own room nodded her head in answer to inquiring glances from the other girls as i made a note of the request i remembered the edith of a year or more ago edith whose mother found her a great trial she didn't care how she looked it was true she wore her hat hanging down over her black braids held on by the elastic band around her neck she lost hair ribbons continually and never seemed to miss them she was a good scholar wide awake alert always ready for the next thing she loved to recite and volunteered information generously in games she was the leader and on the playground always the unanimous choice for the coveted it of the game she was never in the least self conscious and as her mother had said how she looked never seemed to occur to her nineteenth century british periodicals for girls and women offer a wealth of material to understand how girls and women fit into their social and cultural worlds of which music making was an important part the girl's own paper first published in 1880 stands out because of its rich musical content keeping practical usefulness as a research tool and as a guide to further reading in mind judith barger has catalogued the musical content found in the weekly and later monthly issues during the magazine's first thirty years in music scores instalments of serialized fiction about musicians music related nonfiction poetry with a musical title or theme illustrations depicting music making and replies to musical correspondents the book's introductory chapter reveals how content in the girl's own paper changed over time to reflect a shift in women's music making from a female accomplishment to an increasingly professional role within the discipline using the piano girl as a case study a comparison with musical content found in the boy's own paper over the same time span offers additional insight into musical content chosen for the girls magazine a user's guide precedes the chronological annotated catalogue the indexes that follow reveal the magazine's diversity of approach to the subject of music
