since the one thing america had that the allies lacked was young men who could drive the first 3 000 troops sent to europe were ambulance drivers teddy was one of these and from july 1917 through the armistice of 1918 he and the other men of ssu 592 drove their rigs through the climactic battles of the great war most notably the second battle of the marne in 2004 it was widely reported in the british and zambian press that roy clarke columnist and satirist known as kalaki on the the post zambia s major independent daily faced deportation following a column entitled mfuwe the government had announced he was a threat to peace and good order clarke refused to succumb however or indeed apologise instead supported by his editor he continued to champion the freedom of the press in zambia freedom of expression in general and the cause of zambian journalism this book brings together a collection of clarke s writings published over a period of five years his writings are characterised by irony satire and caustic wit exposing folly vice and hypocrisy they are accompanied by the political cartoons of trevor ford popularly know as yuss fred m membe editor of the post provides the introduction to the book in which he comments nowadays we find ourselves stuck in a culture of zealous worship of leaders a culture that would look primitive in the eyes of our ancestors our modern african societies have established a reputation for intolerance that is difficult to match i see roy s work as attempting to confront this situation to help us return to our more tolerant zambian culture a culture of liberating life giving and enjoyable laughter the translator must keep faith with the deeper need that poetry fulfills in our lives to discover not what the poem says but what it does tony barnstone in his essay poem behind the poem the translation of asian poetry into western languages has been one of the most important literary events over the past one hundred years readers have fallen in love with asian poetry and writers have been greatly influenced by it what neither reader nor writer ever witness is the intense engagement behind the poem how the translator must serve as both artist and alchemist urging a poem to work and sing in a foreign language success is rare and the practice of translation as w s merwin has written is plainly impossible and nevertheless indispensable this endlessly fascinating anthology the first of its kind gathers essays poems in translation and worksheets from twenty one noted translators who discuss their aspirations methods and the forces of imagination necessary to bring a poem from one language into another languages discussed include chinese both ancient and modern japanese korean vietnamese khmer and sanskrit a truly apt translation of a poem may require an effort of imagination almost as great as the making of the original the translator who wishes to enter the creative territory must make an intellectual and imaginative jump into the mind and world of the poet and no dictionary will make this easier gary snyder on translating the chinese poet han shan contributors include gary snyder willis barnstone jane hirshfield j p seaton john balaban michelle yeh arthur sze w s merwin and sam hamill mac gober grew up with an unholy appetite for violence and brutality after a stormy adolescence his unhappy family life drove him to military service in the jungles of vietnam where he honed his skills in the fine arts of karate and getting stoned when mac returned home he left the war behind but it wouldn't leave him horrifying flashbacks of screaming dying voices and staccato gunfire poisoned man's days and haunted his nights only an outlaw motorcycle gang provided enough camaraderie cruelty and craziness to give mac a sense of belonging a craving for the adrenaline high of the brutal biker lifestyle sent him roaring across america leaving a trail of bruised broken victims behind finally his body reeking his mind fried his emotions twisted by paranoia and rage mac was headed for certain death but then he has an encounter with another dying man this one was hanging on a cross and he loved mac gober just the way he was this encounter changed mac forever
