IAS 1 Presentation of financial statements (IAS 1) is a standard of the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB) that prescribes the format and content of financial statements. It is one of the most widely used accounting standards in the world, and is used by many countries and international organizations. IAS 1 requires that financial statements be presented in a clear, concise, and consistent manner, and that they provide a true and fair view of the financial position and performance of the entity. The standard also requires that financial statements be presented in a way that is understandable to users, and that they provide a basis for making informed decisions. IAS 1 is based on the accrual principle, and requires that assets and liabilities be measured at their fair value, and that revenues and expenses be recognized in the period in which they are earned or incurred. The standard also requires that financial statements be presented in a way that is consistent with the principles of substance over form, and that they provide a true and fair view of the financial position and performance of the entity. IAS 1 is a complex standard, and requires a significant amount of judgment and expertise to apply. It is also subject to interpretation and application by different accounting firms and auditors. IAS 1 is a key component of the International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) framework, and is used by many countries and international organizations to prepare their financial statements. IAS 1 is also used by many companies in the private sector, and is a key component of the global financial reporting system.
