kumiko saw it first a heart a human heart slithering down outside the window of a train travelling between london bridge and blackfriars someone must have thrown it out from a carriage in front kumiko is determined to find out who and why but skelton was sitting next to kumiko on the train and he saw it too so he also wants to get to the bottom of the mystery or he says he does but really he just wants kumiko back because she s walked out on him just like that and left him heartbroken each for their own reasons kumiko and skelton set out separately on a bizarre trail of discovery darting between dingy student pubs the roofs of borough market and the corridors and car parks of guy s hospital they become embroiled in the seedy world of young medical students until eventually the gossip and the stories lead them both to the hospital s infamous dissection lecturer known behind his back as king death as editors toby litt and ali smith explain in their introduction newness is quite a venerable category there s not much that s new about it in the 1930s when a magazine called new writing was first published it had to compete with new signatures new country new verse the new statesman and nation and new theatre and what with the new woman of the 1890s and new everything else even then new wasn t the new new if we ve achieved diversity it s because our submissions were themselves diverse and the final selection is representative of the proportion of short stories to novel extracts poems and essays that were submitted originality is only proven over time paradoxically we are confident that some of the names here you ve never heard before will become very familiar they may even disgrace themselves by winning prizes becoming established etc but they ll be the kinds of writer like the known names published here for whom everything they write is a renewal of language of place of the senses and of the contemporary

a collection of stories from toby litt threatening even more twists and turns sex and violence and glitz and glamour than in previous works the text stars polly morphous lee perverse and the audioguide to the museum of inside your head and this time its personal this book is about the interaction between literary studies and the philosophy of literature it features essays from internationally renowned and emerging philosophers and literary scholars challenging readers to join them in taking seriously the notion of interdisciplinary study and forging forward in new and exciting directions of thought it identifies that literary studies and the philosophy of literature address similar issues what is literature what is its value why do i care about characters what is the role of the author in understanding a literary work what is fiction as opposed to non fiction yet genuine interdisciplinary interaction remains scarce this collection seeks to overcome current obstacles and seek out new
