in his book in the blink of an eye walter murch the oscar awarded editor of the english patient apocalypse now and many other outstanding movies devises the rule of six six criteria for what makes a good cut on top of his list is to be true to the emotion of the moment a quality more important than advancing the story or being rhythmically interesting the cut has to deliver a meaningful compelling and emotion rich experience to the audience because what they finally remember is not the editing not the camerawork not the performances not even the story it's how they felt technology for all the right reasons applies this insight to the design of interactive products and technologies the domain of human computer interaction usability engineering and interaction design it takes an experiential approach putting experience before functionality and leaving behind oversimplified calls for ease efficiency and automation or shallow beautification instead it explores what really matters to humans and what it needs to make technology more meaningful the book clarifies what experience is and highlights five crucial aspects and their implications for the design of interactive products it provides reasons why we should bother with an experiential approach and presents a detailed working model of experience useful for practitioners and academics alike it closes with the particular challenges of an experiential approach for design the book presents its view as a comprehensive yet entertaining blend of scientific findings design examples and personal anecdotes

to this day the belief is widespread that the taliban and al qaeda are synonymous that their ideology and objectives are closely intertwined and that they have made common cause against the west for decades in an enemy we created alex strick van linschoten and felix kuehn debunk this myth and reveal the much more complex reality that lies beneath it drawing upon their unprecedented fieldwork in afghanistan as well as their arabic dari and pashtu skills the authors show that the west's present entanglement in afghanistan is predicated on the false assumption that defeating the taliban will forestall further terrorist attacks worldwide while immersing themselves in kandahar society the authors interviewed taliban decision makers field commanders and ordinary fighters thoroughly exploring the complexity of the relationship between the taliban and al qaeda and the individuals who established both groups they show that from the mid 1990s onward the taliban and al qaeda diverged far more often than they converged they also argue that this split creates an opportunity to engage the taliban on two fundamental issues renouncing al qaeda and guaranteeing that afghanistan will not be a sanctuary for international terrorists yet the insurgency is changing and it could soon be too late to find a political solution the authors contend that certain aspects of the campaign in afghanistan especially night raids the killings of innocent civilians and attempts to fragment and decapitate the taliban are having the unintended consequence of energizing the resistance creating more opportunities for al qaeda and helping it to attain its objectives the first book to fully untangle the myths from the realities in the relationship between the taliban and al qaeda an enemy we created is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand what's really happening in afghanistan
