In this extensively illustrated work one of Paris' leading historians links the beauty of the city to its harmonious architecture the product of a powerful tradition of classical design running from the Renaissance through the 20th century.

Everyone knows Notre-Dame, the Eiffel Tower and the Châteaux of the Loire Valley but French architects have also produced some of the most iconic buildings of the twentieth century playing a central role in the emergence and development of modernism in France. Jean-Louis Cohen presents a complete narrative of the unfolding architectural modernity in the country grappling not only with the buildings but also with the political and critical context surrounding them. Cohen examines the developments in urban design and architecture within France depicting the continuities and breaks in French architecture since 1900 against a broader international background describing the systems of architectural exchange with other countries including Italy, Germany, Russia and the United States. He offers a new view on the ideas, projects and buildings otherwise so often considered only from narrow nationalistic perspectives. Cohen also maps the problematic search for a national identity against the background of European rivalries and France's colonial past drawing on a wealth of recent research. This authoritatively written book will challenge the way design professionals and historians view modern French architecture.

Ces sites sont le fruit de la rencontre entre des architectes d'avant-garde et des maires audacieux.
