the draft audiovisual media services ams directive published in december 2005 was met with some alarm it sought to extend the existing television without frontiers directive to new services which were seen to be competing for audience and revenue in doing so it would have introduced inappropriate regulation on the new media sector there have now been some changes to the original draft and a tightening of the definition of television like services although an improvement the committee is concerned that there is still not enough legal certainty they are also worried about the need to defend the country of origin approach to single market legislation and reject the idea that regulators should act to preserve the market dominance of existing players from new entrants they are also unconvinced of the need for any quantitative restriction on advertising states define who their citizens are and exert control over their life and movements but how does such power persist in a global world where people ideas and products constantly cross the borders of what the states see as their sovereign territory this groundbreaking work sets to examine and interprets such challenges to offer a new way of thinking about citizenship abandoning the sovereignty principle it develops a new image of citizenship using the connectedness principle to do so it interprets acts of citizenship by following activist citizens across the world through case studies from wikileaks and the gaza flotilla to china s virtual world and darfur written by a leader in the field this accessible and original work imagines citizens without frontiers as a politics without community and belonging inclusion without exclusion where the frontier becomes a form of otherness that citizens erase or create this unique work brings forth a new and creative way to approach citizenship beyond boundaries that will appeal to anyone studying citizenship social movements and migration since 1982 the european parliament has been urging the european commission to introduce a discussion paper on the creation of a common market in radio and tv in the community that meets the new functions of direct broadcasting by satellite dbs and cable television
