the scholars who have contributed to this volume of essays are jewish and christian thinkers who without melding their different religious traditions and scholarly methods have developed complementary responses to what they believe is wrong with contemporary biblical scholarship in judaism and christianity the purpose of this collection is to draw attention to the similarities among these responses and to the possibility that they may contribute to a family of postcritical methods for interpreting the scriptural traditions the postcritical scholars employ current methods of critical scientific inquiry to clarify the language the historical contexts and the didactic messages of the biblical traditions they do not however find these methods sufficient they argue that the biblical traditions communicate to their practitioners some rules of action that cannot be deciphered within the terms set by canons of critical reason that emerged in the european renaissance and enlightenment rather among the bible s unique rules of action are the principles for interpreting the traditions themselves postcritical scholars attempt to identify these rules of interpretation producing what editor peter ochs has come to term postcritical scriptural interpretation it is neither strictly modern nor premodern this form of inquiry emerges in the dialogue that is now unfolding between a contemporary family of scholars and their scriptural traditions book jacket title summary field provided by blackwell north america inc all rights reserved this book charts the shifting boundaries of judaism from antiquity to the modern period in order to bring clarity to what scholars mean when they claim that ancient texts or groups are within judaism as well as exploring how rabbinic jews christians and muslims have negotiated and renegotiated what judaism is and is not in order to form their own identities belief in jesus as the messiah was seen as part of first century judaism but by the fourth or fifth century the boundaries had shifted and adherence to jesus came to be seen as outside of judaism resituating new testament texts within first or second century judaism is an historical exercise that may broaden our view of what judaism looked like in the early centuries ce but normatively these texts remain within christianity because of their reception history the historical within judaism perspective however has the potential to challenge and reshape the theology of contemporary christianity while at the same time the long held consensus that belief in jesus cannot belong within judaism is again challenged by the modern messianic jewish movement
