this book comprehensively analyses the foundations of judicial review recent years have witnessed a vibrant debate concerning the constitutional basis of judicial review which reflects a broader discourse about the role of the courts and their relationship with the other institutions of government within the constitutional order this book comprehensively analyses the foundations of judicial review it subjects the traditional justification based on the doctrine of ultra vires to critical scrutiny and fundamental reformulation and it addresses the theoretical challenges posed by the impact of the human rights act 1998 on administrative law and by the extension of judicial review to prerogative and non statutory powers it also explores the relationship between the theoretical basis of administrative law and its practical capacity to safeguard individuals against maladministration the book seeks to develop a constitutional rationale for judicial review which founds its legitimacy in core principles such as the rule of law the separation of powers and the sovereignty of parliament it presents a detailed analysis of the interface between constitutional and administrative law and will be of interest to all public lawyers this book engages with the concerns the rising phenomenon of arbitrations between private and public actors raises for principles of constitutional law including democracy the rule of law and the protection of fundamental rights it analyses how party appointed one off arbitral tribunals determine the delineation of private rights and public interests within a transnational legal environment and provides a framework that aligns this activity with constitutional values featuring 20 chapters dealing with almost 40 jurisdictions from different corners of the world the book examines how domestic legal systems and legal practice approach the involvement of public entities as parties to arbitration agreements and arbitration proceedings to what extent the constitutional legal frameworks involved problematize private public arbitration as a constitutional concern and how different domestic legal systems ensure that private public arbitration conforms to and avoids undermining the public interest the chapters analyse inter alia whether the governing domestic law treats private public arbitration differently from commercial arbitration between private parties to what extent domestic law permits such arbitrations what regulatory frameworks domestic law sets up and what control mechanisms domestic law establishes in order to ensure that the public interest is safeguarded when public entities agree to have disputes resolved through arbitration rather than in domestic courts this volume explores the social and political forces behind constitution making from a global perspective it combines leading theoretical perspectives on the social and political foundations of constitutions with a range of in depth case studies on constitution making in nineteen countries the result is an examination of constitutions as social phenomena and their interaction with other social phenomena from various perspectives in the social sciences the institute of policy studies at victoria university ran a conference in april 2000 on developments in new zealand s constitution intended as a first step towards any future changes this report includes 47 short papers presented at the conference s 10 sessions and 5 speeches along with a thematic summary of the discussion by the editor
