rendering is the final stage in the 3d computer graphics production process though the wider context of rendering begins with shading and texturing objects and lighting your scene the rendering process ends when surfaces materials lights and motion are processed into a final image or image sequence visualization vs the final render as you build scenes shade and texture objects light scenes position cameras and so on you'll want to visualize them many times before producing the final rendered image or image sequence this process may involve depending on your particular project creating and setting up additional cameras see create a camera and adjust a camera and its attributes visualize a scene during early iterations to detect and correct image quality problems or to estimate and reduce the amount of time the final render takes before you spend time performing the final render you can visualize your scene in the viewport interactively render with the maya software renderer using ipr or if you are using the arnold for maya renderer interactively render in the arnold renderview you can render a single frame or a sequence of multiple frames that is an animation or part of an animation interactively from within maya alternatively you can batch render or command line render one or more frames before you start your final render be sure to select a renderer and set the file name format and resolution of your rendered images in the render settings window some of the best current research on realistic rendering is included in this volume it emphasizes the current hot topics in this field image based rendering and efficient local and global illumination calculations in the first of these areas there are several contributions on real world model acquisition and display on using image based techniques for illumination and on efficient ways to parameterize and compress images or light fields as well as on clever uses of texture and compositing hardware to achieve image warping and 3d surface textures in global and local illumination there are contributions on extending the techniques beyond diffuse reflections to include specular and more general angle dependent reflection functions on efficiently representing and approximating these reflection functions on representing light sources and on approximating visibility and shadows finally there are two contributions on how to use knowledge about human perception to concentrate the work of accurate rendering only where it will be noticed and a survey of computer graphics techniques used in the production of a feature length computer animated film with full 3d characters
