how do we know whether there are other minds besides our own the problem of other minds raises many questions which are at the root of all philosophical investigations how it is we know what is the mind and can we be certain about any of our beliefs in this compelling analysis of other minds anita avramides traces the question from the ancient sceptics through to descartes malebranche locke berkeley reid and wittgenstein the second part of the book explores the views of influential contemporary philosophers such as strawson davidson nagel and searle other minds provides a clear insightful introduction to one of the most important problems in philosophy it will prove invaluable to all students of philosophy leading scholars from psychology neuroscience and philosophy present theories and findings on understanding how individuals infer such complex mental states as beliefs desires intentions and emotions givon s new book re casts pragmatics and most conspicuously the pragmatics of sociality and communication in neuro cognitive bio adaptive evolutionary terms the fact that context the core notion of pragmatics is a framing operation undertaken on the fly through judgements of relevance has been well known since aristotle kant and peirce but the context that is relevant to the pragmatics of sociality and communication is a highly specific mental operation the mental modeling of the interlocutor s current rapidly shifting belief and intention states the construed context of social interaction and communication is thus a mental representation of other minds following a condensed intellectual history of pragmatics the book investigates the adaptive pragmatics of lexical semantic categories the 1st order framing of reality what cognitive psychologists call semantic memory utilizing the network model the book then takes a fresh look at the adaptive underpinnings of metaphoric meaning the core chapters of the book outline the re interpretation of communicative context as the systematic on line construction of mental models of the interlocutor s current rapidly shifting states of belief and intention this grand theme is elaborated through examples from the grammar of referential coherence verbal modalities and clause chaining in its final chapters the book pushes pragmatics beyond its traditional bounds surveying its interdisciplinary implications for philosophy of science theory of personality personality disorders and the calculus of social interaction we all take it for granted that we are typically in a position to know about the thoughts and feelings of other people but we might naturally wonder how we acquire this kind of knowledge knowing other minds brings together ten original chapters written by internationally renowned researchers on questions that arise from our everyday social interaction with others can we have direct perceptual knowledge of another person s thoughts how do we acquire general conceptions of mental states what lessons can be drawn from experimental work in developmental psychology are there fundamental differences between the ways in which we acquire knowledge of our own minds and the ways in which we acquire knowledge of someone else s mind what sort of cognitive processing underlies our everyday social understanding how should we best think of the relationship between our complex social life and moral value the chapters in this volume convey a variety of different perspectives and make a number of novel contributions to the existing literature on these questions thereby opening up new avenues of inquiry furthermore they illustrate how questions in philosophy and questions from empirical cognitive science overlap and mutually inform one another philosopher peter godfrey smith dons a wet suit and journeys into the depths of consciousness in other minds although mammals and birds are widely regarded as the smartest creatures on earth it has lately become clear that a very distant branch of the tree of life has also sprouted higher intelligence the cephalopods consisting of the squid the cuttlefish and above all the octopus in captivity octopuses have been known to identify individual human keepers raid neighboring tanks for food turn off lightbulbs by spouting jets of water plug drains and make daring escapes how is it that a creature with such gifts evolved through an evolutionary lineage so radically distant from our own what does it mean that evolution built minds not once but at least twice the octopus is the closest we will come to meeting an intelligent alien what can we learn from the encounter in other minds peter godfrey smith a distinguished philosopher of science and a skilled scuba diver tells a bold new story of how subjective experience crept into being how nature became aware of itself as godfrey smith stresses it is a story that largely occurs in the ocean where animals first appeared tracking the mind's fitful development godfrey smith shows how unruly clumps of seaborne cells began living together and became capable of sensing acting and signaling as these primitive organisms became more entangled with others they grew more complicated the first nervous systems evolved probably in ancient relatives of jellyfish later on the cephalopods which began as inconspicuous mollusks abandoned their shells and rose above the ocean floor searching for prey and acquiring the greater intelligence needed to do so taking an independent route mammals and birds later began their own evolutionary journeys but what kind of intelligence do cephalopods possess drawing on the latest scientific research and his own scuba diving adventures godfrey smith probes the many mysteries that surround the lineage how did the octopus a solitary creature with little social life become so smart what is it like to have eight tentacles that are so packed with neurons that they virtually think for themselves what happens when some octopuses abandon their hermit like ways and congregate as they do in a unique location off the coast of australia by tracing the question of inner life back to its roots and comparing human beings with our most remarkable animal relatives godfrey smith casts crucial new light on the octopus mind and on our own
