this book offers a critical engagement with contemporary ir textbooks via a novel folklorist approach two parts of the folklorist approach are developed addressing story structures via resemblances to two fairy tales and engaging with the role of authors via framing gestures the book not only looks at how the idea of social science may persist in textbooks as many assumptions about what it means to study ir but also at how these assumptions are written into the defining stories textbooks tell and the possibilities for re negotiating these stories and the boundaries of the discipline this book will specifically engage with how the stories in textbooks constrain how it is possible to define ir through its re production as a social science discipline in the first part story structures are explored via donkeyskin and bluebeard stories which the book argues resemble some structures in textbooks that define how it is permissible to tell stories about ir in the second part the role of authors is explored via their framing gestures within a text drawing on a number of fairy tales by approaching the stories in textbooks alongside fairy tales starnes reflects back onto ir the disciplining practices in the stories textbooks tell by rendering them unfamiliar aiming to spark a critical conversation about the role of textbooks in defining the boundaries of what counts as IR and by extension the boundaries of the IR canon this book is of great interest to students and scholars of international relations this book is about imperialism driven globalization its historic impact on Africa Latin America and Asia and over time the varied responses of the national political units and regional entities in these continents to the challenges of building countervailing power and laying foundations for independent development where genuine recovery and empowerment have emerged this has been the result not only of the pursuit of dignitist political and economic values that emphasize robust and sustained productivity geared toward uplifting the living standards and dignity of all the members of the national society but also of the creation of indigenous institutions whose relations with the external world are defined by equality rather than dependence and subordination Opoku Agyeman argues that dignification is the fundamentally necessary response to imperialism's inevitable afflictions of national racial humiliation it is the most crucial ingredient in the complex of motivations that propel formerly weak nation states and regional communities to rise up and defend the honor of their people as Mao Zedong told the world in 1949 ours will no longer be a nation subject to insult and humiliation we have stood up this study argues emphatically that it is a country's or region's developed or developing capabilities not its historic and continuing victimization or habitual dependence on charitable aid and other altruistic interventions from the international community that determines its success in escaping the scourge of powerlessness and underdevelopment it further maintains that a people who have been brought low through brutal dehumanizing imperialism cannot bypass the need for redemptive empowerment if they wish to regain honor and a proper place in the world finally it takes issue with joseph stiglitz jeffrey sachs and others like them whose moralistic critiques of the rapacity of imperialistic globalization carry the unfortunate implication that it is possible for a fair and just world social order to come out of incremental reforms of philanthropically motivated developed powerful countries in the structure and operations of global capitalism
