the international ethical guidelines for biomedical research involving human subjects cioms and who 1993 11 defines research as referring to a class of activities designed to develop or contribute to generalizable knowledge generalizable knowledge consists of theories principles or relationships or the accumulation of information on which they are based that can be corroborated by accepted scientific techniques of observation and inference the international guidelines for the ethical review of epidemiological studies cioms 1991 recognizes that it may be difficult to distinguish between research and program evaluation it offers the following guidance the defining attribute of research is that it is designed to produce new generalizable knowledge as distinct from knowledge pertaining only to a particular individual or programme cioms 1991 guideline 52 23 health research includes both medical and behavioral studies that relate to health research can be conducted in conjunction with patient care clinical research or it can be conducted outside of the context of clinical care research may involve only observation or it may require instead or in combination a physical chemical or psychological intervention research may generate new records or may rely on already existing records essay from the year 2010 in the subject communications journalism journalism professions grade 2 university of hamburg language english abstract 1 introduction a lot of essays have been written when it comes to the approach of codes of ethics in journalism in globalizing times where the internet serves as an increasing news source it is of importance to rethink the existing codes of ethics and to frame them in a broader transnational context if this sooner or later leads us to a global or european code of ethics has also been one of the main topics in the media communication research field as tiina laitila for example defines common journalistic codes of ethics within the european countries 1 but whereas common ethical rules and guidelines regarding journalism in general seem more clear and discussed in several studies ethical codes in terms of photojournalism are still not defined in a normative way especially in times of the digital age and its mistrust it brings concerning digital photography there is an increasing need of clear ethical guidelines for photojournalism to demonstrate the importance of codes of ethics in photojournalism the impact visual images possess will be discussed and reconsidered in the beginning on the basis of these ideas this essay will examine whether or not ethical codings exist in the field of photojournalism with a special emphasize on germany it will be analyzed if a german code of ethics can be defined or if a broader transnational code of ethics can be assigned regarding photojournalism as a concluding part the conduct of photographic codes of ethics will be discussed with the help of single conflict images if a photojournalist respects the rules of codes of ethics or not doesn t make his or her work often easier especially when it comes to war or conflict reporting journalists often have the dilemma about how to behave as a photographer in critical situations images as for example the worldwide discussed picture of the starving child in sudan taken by kevin carter in 1993 2 made us aware of the ambivalent decisions journalists often need to make in comparison to print news photography is morally challenging and often difficult to judge considering the obvious participation of the photojournalist the taken picture in its visual expression clearly interweaves the journalist in a more public way than it confronts print journalists publishing a picture with your name shows actually that you as a journalist have been on location which demands immense responsibility and commitment essay from the year 2004 in the subject medicine general grade good anglia ruskin university language english abstract select three of the five following areas of research and identify one ethical issue that is controversial or subject to opposing opinions in each of the three chosen areas briefly describe the controversy or opposing viewpoints for these three issues with reference to the ethical principles or values involved x bio medical research on humans x pre clinical research animal or in vivo x animal health research x field studies x manufacture packaging and handling of investigational medicinal products for one of the three selected areas critically evaluate how the applicable laws regulatory requirements and guidelines address public concerns about the identified ethical issue and the extent to which these achieve a balance between ethical and scientific concerns essay from the year 2005 in the subject business economics business ethics corporate ethics grade a university of otago department of management course international management language english abstract as long as human societies exist the life of man has been based on norms rules values and practices that governed human behaviour individual and communal shared ethics even make life within society possible as we know it part of this social life is doing business in form of exchanging goods to fulfil basic needs and to achieve higher levels of satisfaction for oneself and for others however to combine moral thinking and acting with today s business activities in a free market economy seems to be counterintuitive somehow both notions do not really fit together still corporate codes of ethics exist this essay consist of two parts each part reflects one question or problem that i found worthy of having more light shed on it the first part answers the question why do corporate codes of ethics exist or why do corporations establish corporate codes of ethics under the basic assumptions that ethics are costly and therefore against the idea of maximising profit which is predominant in the market ideology proving these assumptions is not so easy first the term ethics will be defined and selected theories which could be the basis for codes of ethics will be portrayed then it is important to know what kind of morality is underlying the modern market ideology as we know it following that a correlation is sought between the market morality and corporate ethics ending in the insight that corporate morality is costly and therefore is against economic intuition part one finishes then with a surprisingly simple answer to the question why codes exist the second part brings the findings of the first part in a broader context the considered corporation of part one now grows beyond borders and begins to conduct business globally as a multinational corporation its existing set of corporate codes of ethics are now confronted with other nations societies and cultures and possibly other ethicities whether the company should do as the romans do or not is the major question of the second part closely connected to the keywords relativism and universalism the problems revealed by each approach and possible solutions to them will be shown in part two the conclusion finally summarises the findings of the essay briefly but moreover shows further questions and problems that would be worth to explore in the overlapping areas of applied ethics and international management
