this volume presents a collection of interdisciplinary collaborations between contemporary art heritage anthropological and archaeological practitioners departing from the proceedings of the sixth world archaeological congress s archaeologies of art theme and Ábhar agus meon exhibitions it includes papers by seminal figures as well as experimental work by those who are exploring the application of artistic methods and theory to the practice of archaeology art and archaeology collaborations conversations criticisms encourages the creative interplay of various approaches to art and archaeology so these new modes of expression can contribute to how we understand the world established topics such as cave art monumental architecture and land art will be discussed alongside contemporary video art performance art and relational arts practices here the parallel roles of artists as makers of new worlds and archaeologists as makers of pasts worlds are brought together to understand the influences of human creativity

this illustrated study uses works of art and the revelations of archaeology as evidence of the ancient greeks respect for reason and scientific inquiry and of their humanistic worldview values that dominate western civilization to the present day from jacket the book discusses the creative mental processes of the prehistoric and contemporary artists as well as of the archaeologists studying them from the perspective of cognition and art its intention is to highlight the artistic thinking within the imagination of the archaeologist as well as to discuss the concepts of imagination and art in the current scientific research from this perspective the book suggests a type of research closer to the complexity of the human nature and human thinking that can approach cultural and psychological subjects ignored until now it is hoped that one of the results of the book will be the formulation of new meanings for art from the perspective of archaeology responding to the recent ongoing growing interest in the art archaeology interaction the editor has carefully selected papers written by a series of eminent european and american scholars with a background in ancient and contemporary art symbolic thinking semiotics and archaeological imagination with the intention of introducing new arguments and discussions into the emerging art archaeology discourse the book is composed of three parts art and the ancient mind experiencing the ancient mind and exploring the act of creation art and archaeology in china documents one of the most acclaimed and well attended exhibitions in recent years over three million visitors saw the flying horse of the han dynasty and the jade shroud that are now widely and popularly recognized and pictured here along with many other archaeological treasures illustrations depict objects that range in time from 600 000 bc to the end of the yuan dynasty in the fourteenth century many are shown in their archaeological settings the text by edmund capon places them in historical perspective and cultural context and explains modern china's unusual approach to archaeological preservation and interpretation while there is much to fascinate archaeologists historians and sinologists the book will appeal to readers and viewers without specialized knowledge but who have an eye for incomparable beauty science has played a crucial role in the initial stages of westerners collecting and studying ancient chinese artworks and archaeological materials the relevant scientific data were quickly generated using progressively sophisticated examination techniques but the task of integrating scientific data with archaeological and art historical resources and developing a workable interdisciplinary study method has lagged behind scientific endeavor part one of this book explores the modes and functions of the scientific resources available and their integration into interdisciplinary study methods and models pre war researchers particularly emphasized that their studies of chinese artistic archaeological materials were scientific improvements in precision and advanced specialization of examining instruments and techniques resulted in substantively more detailed scientific data particularly in the post war period this brought with it new research dimensions and increased knowledge of targeted samples and also greater challenges to the integration of interdisciplinary study in part two meili yang establishes a feasible method of interdisciplinary study in terms of five case studies related to chinese song ceramics relevant data are provided and professionally explained resulting in critical new information related to contemporary ceramic technologies this technology information leads us to the recognition of the uniqueness of each single artwork and the artisan s individual intention and critically recognition of the close association with contemporary society and culture at the time of manufacture utilizing this new method of interdisciplinary study modern science ancient technology and art and society are seen to have explicit connections the author not only broadens scholars and readers perspectives regarding ancient ceramic craft but provides a rigorous methodology applicable to interdisciplinary studies across other disciplines how can archaeologists interpret ancient art and images if they do not treat them as symbols or signifiers of identity traditional approaches to the archaeology of art have borrowed from the history of art and the anthropology of art by focusing on iconography meaning communication and identity this puts the archaeology of art at a disadvantage as an understanding of iconography and meaning requires a detailed knowledge of historical or ethnographic context unavailable to many archaeologists rather than playing to archaeology s weaknesses the authors argue that an archaeology of art should instead play to archaeology s strength the material character of archaeological evidence using case studies examining rock art figurines beadwork murals coffin decorations sculpture and architecture from europe the americas asia australia and north africa the authors develop an understanding of the affective and effective nature of ancient art and imagery an analysis of a series of material based practices from gesture and improvisation to miniaturisation and gigantism assembly and disassembly and the use of distinctions in colour enable key concepts such as style and meaning to be re imagined as affective practices recasting the archaeology of art as the study of affects offers a new prospectus for the study of ancient art and imagery

the volume ranges from the close examination of specific objects to larger questions of their signification for the medieval societies that fashioned them and the ways in which they have been and are currently interpreted the publication of this general introduction to the art and archaeology of korea coincides with the new permanent korea gallery at the british museum promoting a wider interest in the country and its history aimed at a non specialist audience this book is
