bringing the nation back in takes as its starting point a series of developments that shaped politics in the united states and europe over the past thirty years the end of the cold war the rise of financial and economic globalization the creation of the european union and the development of the postnational this book contends we are now witnessing a break with the post 1945 world order and with modern politics two competing ideas have arisen global cosmopolitanism and populist nationalism contributors argue this polarization of social ethos between cosmopolitanism and nationalism is a sign of a deeper political crisis which they explore from different perspectives rather than taking sides the aim is to diagnose the origins of the current impasse and to bring the nation back in by expanding what we mean by nation and national identity and by respecting the localizing processes that have led to national traditions and struggles in september of 1976 a group of some fifty scholars and practising mystics gathered at the university of calgary the chief objective of the conference was to ponder and assess the nature of mysticism in its eastern western and north american indian forms the method the conference followed was somewhat unusual in that it aimed at a dialogue between the practising mystics and the scholars what this book presents to the reader is not the outcome of the dialogue but the personal statements and papers from which the dialogue began of course there is a degree to which the dialogue is already present in that the papers of the scholars were written with the statements of the mystics in hand among some of the philosophers present a set of more formal comments on each others presentations was recorded and these have been included phenomenology in america has developed in unique directions with respect to descriptive analysis and in relation to interdisciplinary fields descriptions examines current trends in phenomenology it begins by reflecting on phenomenological description itself then takes phenomenology into such areas as time science and the arts the social and into the universities ranging from the development of theory by such well known philosophers as maurice natanson and robert sokolowski this collection addresses the topics of pregnant subjectivity nostalgia the ethical function of architecture computer science and academic freedom in this sweeping look at political and philosophical history linda m g zerilli unpacks the tightly woven core of hannah arendt s unfinished work on a tenacious modern problem how to judge critically in the wake of the collapse of inherited criteria of judgment engaging a remarkable breadth of thinkers including ludwig wittgenstein leo strauss immanuel kant frederick douglass john rawls jürgen habermas martha nussbaum and many others zerilli clears a hopeful path between an untenable universalism and a cultural relativism that forever defers the possibility of judging at all zerilli deftly outlines the limitations of existing debates both those that concern themselves with the impossibility of judging across cultures and those that try to find transcendental rational values to anchor judgment looking at kant through the lens of arendt zerilli develops the notion of a public conception of truth and from there she explores relativism historicism and universalism as they shape feminist approaches to judgment following arendt even further zerilli arrives at a hopeful new pathway seeing the collapse of philosophical criteria for judgment not as a problem but a way to practice judgment anew as a world building activity of democratic citizens the result is an astonishing theoretical argument that travels through and goes beyond some of the most important political thought of the modern period this is volume ix in a series of twelve on ethics originally published in 1955 this is a collection of works the philosophy of religion that four forwood lectures on the philosophy of religion which were delivered in the university of liverpool in 1949 it developed into two series of gifford lectures given in the university of st andrews in the years 1950 and 1951

this book shows how psychological and social interventions can help people with psychosis it brings together both theoretical chapters that contribute to the reconceptualization of psychosis and clinical cases illustrating how contemporary psychotherapeutic intervention models can be applied in the treatment of this mental health condition with reflections strategies and practical guidelines demonstrating how these models can inform professional practice in mental healthcare chapters brought together in this volume aim to reflect a paradigm shift in psychosis care they present person centered models that lead to a way of seeing understanding and treating psychosis that is very different from the traditional biomedical model current authors and approaches are revolutionizing an outdated model trapped in purely pharmacological actions and tautological explanations of a biological nature where symptom control is the basic and fundamental form of approach and in which psychotherapeutic actions take second place as subsidiary to the former approaches such as acceptance and commitment therapy acceptance and recovery therapy by levels open dialogue compassion centered therapy or the hearing voices movement to name but a few of those presented in this book represent a journey of self knowledge and learning for those recovering from psychosis and have an intense transformative potential for the therapeutic team the fundamental principle that guides this book is to share models belonging to psychology that aim at personal development while respecting the needs values and goals of each person and that can be adopted by any professional or student of clinical psychology psychiatry nursing social work or any other discipline searching for more humanistic approaches to treat psychosis
