the magnificent collection of shelley and his circle manuscripts in the carl h pforzheimer library is one of our finest sources for the english romantic movement this edition presents the more than 450 manuscripts from 1772 to 1822 over half of them by percy bysshe shelley

this book takes a fresh look at secondary urban english classrooms and at what happens when students and their teachers explore literature collaboratively by closely examining what happens in english lessons minute by minute it reveals how literary texts function not as a valorised heritage to be transmitted but as a resource for the students work of cultural production and contestation the reading that is undertaken in classrooms has tended to be construed as either a poor substitute or merely a preparation for other reading particularly for that paradigmatic literacy event the absorbed and simultaneously discriminating consumption of the literary text by the independent private reader this book argues for a different understanding of what constitutes reading an understanding that is informed by historical and ethnographic perspectives and by psychological and semiotic theory it presents the case for a conception of reading as an active collaborative process of meaning making and for a fully social model of learning drawing extensively on data gathered through classroom observation and filming of english lessons taught over the course of a year by two teachers in a london secondary school the book explores students engagement with literary texts and the pedagogy that facilitates this engagement the book offers new insights into reading and reading literature in particular it challenges the paradigm of reading that is offered in government policy and the assumption common to much work within the field of new literacies that schooled literacy is the already known the default against which the alternative literacy practices of homes and communities can be defined it will be valuable reading for researchers teachers teacher educators and postgraduate students and will have particular appeal for those with an interest in the fields of english studies and literacy excerpt you have no right pascal to command me to marry a man whom i do not love the speaker was a young girl not more than eighteen years of age as she spoke the flashing of her eyes and her clenched hands betokened the intensity of her feelings the person to whom the words were addressed was a man of about forty he was smooth shaven and the black shaggy eyebrows which met above the bridge of his nose gave to his face a stern and almost forbidding expression he did not reply to his sister s impassioned words for some time but sat apparently unconcerned tapping lightly on the library table with the fingers of his right hand the theatre of roblès perhaps best known in this country for montserratt includes dramatic comedy and farce as well as tragedy examples of which are included in this first selection in english outside the community of scholars of french studies roblès whose works have not only won a number of literary prizes but have also placed him in the select membership of the goncourt academy is relatively unknown in the english speaking world it is safe to say that roblès s theatre is better known in iron curtain countries than in the united states a lack that this authorized translation of the three representative plays included here seeks to remedy the tragedy case for a rebel the dramatic comedy the clock and the farce porfirio represent roblès s versatility in the diversity of genres as an anthology intended for the reading public and for students of drama the three plays illustrate an important factor in the dramatist s aesthetic his profound commitment to fellowman and his hatred of oppression all three plays portray oppression in its various manifestations since the mid 1930s Emmanuel Roblès has combined writing and teaching with extensive traveling; he resides part of the year in France and part in Algeria, the country of his birth.
